Hamilton County Is Harmonious Again

And is Working to Elect Gov. Campbell.

Music Hall Filled to Overflowing Last Night.

Ten Thousand People Stand in the Rain

To Hear the Butler County Mascot Talk.

Two Great Speeches in Cincinnati—Thousands of People Remained in Line Until After One O'clock this Morning—State Issues Discussed.

Cincinnati, Oct. 20.—The principal event in the democratic campaign in Hamilton county was the governor's meeting here last night. All along it has been asserted by the republican papers that he would strike a cold wave when he reached Cincnnati. For the past week they have realized that last night's meeting would be an immense affair.

To discount its effects they have been claiming that the people would attend out of mere curiosity. The enthusiasm which prevailed at the great Music hall puts a stop to all of that kind of talk, and the republicans of Hamilton county now realize that they have a hard fight on their hands.

They presumed on a democratic defection of immense proportions. They now know that the democrats of this county are enthusiastic for him, and that there are many republicans who will give him their votes, some because they are opposed to the McKinley law and others because they admire a bold, fearless and honest executive.

Gov. Campbell arrived here at 5 o'clock from Batavia. He was escorted from the station by the Duckworth club and held a reception at the club house of this organization.

He was joined here by Senator Brice and other distinguished democrats, and later they dined at the Queen City club, the guest of Hon. R. B. Bowler, chairman of the democratic county committee. The parade of the democratic clubs took place in a cold rainstorm, yet it was four times as large as the parade of the republican clubs at the Sherman and Foraker meeting on Saturday night.

Gov. Campbell, Judge Crisp, Senator Brice, Hon. William S. Groesbeck and other distinguished democrats were escorted to Music hall by the clubs.

The doors of Music hall were thrown open at 7:30 o'clock, but long before that hour the streets surrounding the building were thronged with people. As soon as the doors were open there was a rush, and in a short time all but the reserved seats were filled.

This was over an hour before the time for opening the meeting and the people sat and stood, patiently awaiting the arrival of the speakers, occasionally cheering prominent men as they entered.

On the stage were many prominent members of the party, including all but two of those who signed the famous manifesto protesting against the renomination of Gov. Campbell.

On the arrival of Gov. Campbell and Judge Crisp the scene was indescribable. The vast audience jumped to its feet. Men shouted at the top of their voices, women waved handkerchiefs, and for fully five minutes this was kept up.

When the governor passed down the aisle the bands all broke loose on "The Campbells Are Coming," and there was an indescribable scene until he had reached the stage and taken his seat.

It was late when Hon. W. S. Grosbeck, the chairman of the meeting, introduced Hon. Charles F. Crisp. While Judge Crisp was speaking Gov. Campbell was taken to the outside of the hall, where an impromptu overflow meeting was held.

There were fully 10,000 people on the outside of the hall, and they did not mind the cold rain that was falling. The governor made them a happy little speech and then returned to the hall.

When Gov. Campbell was introduced there was a repetition of the scenes of the early part of the evening. The governor was in good voice and in a most happy mood. He knew what the night's demonstration meant, and did his part towards making this the greatest political meeting ever held in the city of Cincinnati. The meeting on the outside of the hall was continued until a late hour, and was addressed by Hon. Charles W. Baker and other democratic orators.

Before the governor was introduced, Hon. William M. Ampt, a republican attorney who has declared against McKinley and for Campbell, read an original poem on McKinleyism which was roundly applauded.

The governor did not begin his speech until 11:15 o'clock, but not one of the vast audience retired until the governor had concluded. When he stepped to the front of the stage he was compelled to stand there for fully five minutes, and the vast audience did not cease cheering until it had exhausted itself.

The governor referred to the vast audience and said: "The speech you have been making to me for the past five minutes is more eloquent than anything I can say." (Applause).

"It means a democratic victory in the state of Ohio." (Applause).

When he asked, "Where is that 15,000 republican majority in Hamilton to come from?" there were shouts of "Gone to meet McGinty," and vociferous cheering.

He said he had begun in the republican western reserve and then gone to the democratic northwest, and he brought greetings and tidings of victory.

Referring to the Times-Star charge that he was dodging state issues, he said that if the editor of that paper read his exchanges he would know that he had several times shown that his administration needed no defense.

He said he would talk on state issues and county issues, and first cited the good work of the Sixty-ninth general assembly, particularly the Australian ballot law.

He quoted the Commercial Gazette, "A vote for the republican ticket is a vote against the blank, blanked ballot." He said he accepted the issue and would meet them in November on it.

He next read a statement from the state treasurer showing that the accounts of the state were overdrawn over $900,000 when his administration came in. During the first year with reduced revenues they saved enough by economy to pay part of this but when they got the direct tax from the federal treasury they had made appropriations.

By way of justifying these expenditures he cited the building of the orphans' home at Xenia where 50 little graves might be found as a monument to the administration he turned out.

While mentioning the soldiers' home cottages at Sandusky he said the democratic assembly had befriended the soldier more than any republican assembly had. The war is over. When the republicans had dug up the soldiers and buried them face down as was suggested in this hall last Saturday evening, they might conclude also the war was over.

He thought, however, it was far more likely the old soldiers would bury the republican party face downward first.

After referring to other expenses he reverted to the management of the penitentiary. There were some things the democratic party can do, though it is called the party of cant. Some things the republican can't do. It can't keep a man in jail if he has plenty of money. This local hit took the crowd by storm. Then the governor turned his attention to county matters. This part of his address was purely local, but judging from its reception decidedly interesting. The governor closed a few minutes past midnight by hunting in his big audience for that workingman who has had his wages increased a dollar by the new tariff law. He did not find him.

CALL'S ELECTION SEALED.

Tallahassee, Fla., Oct. 20.—The secretary of state has attached his signature and the great seal of the state of Florida to a copy of the proceedings of the joint session of the legislature, including the proceedings of May 26, when Call was elected United States senator. Attorney General Lamar has declined to institute the United States supreme court proceedings for the issuance of a mandamus to compel the secretary of state to sign and seal the appointment of Davidson, as directed by Gov. Fleming.

ESCAPED FROM THE RUSSIANS.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 20.—Advices from North Sydney, B. C., state that a dispatch has been received there from Capt. D. E. McLean at San Francisco, announcing that the McLean Brothers, who were recently captured by Russians in the Bering sea, have succeeded in regaining their liberty. The captain states that his vessel is safe at San Francisco, and that his brother Alexander is on his way home to Cape Breton.

MATCHED FOR A RACE.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 20.—Edward Hanlan and the Australian oarsman Stephenson have been matched for a race on Shawnigan lake next Saturday for a purse of $600.

INGALLS AND BUTLER.

Boston, Oct. 20.—Ex-Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, addressed a large audience in Tremont temple last evening. Gen. B. F. Butler introduced the lecturer.

FORCED TO EAT THE DOGS.

Additional News from Suffering Russia.

A Systematic Solicitation for Aid is Not Bringing in the Food Required.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 20.—Advices from South-Eastern Russia state that extraordinary measures are being taken everywhere by the local authorities to deal with the distress, and that systematic personal application is being made to all the well-to-do for aid.

The appeals do not bring in as much as was hoped, on account of the stagnant condition of trade. From the district of Jetimchef comes a peculiar story to the effect that the dogs of that region which are noted for sagacity and which are used largely for carrying burdens and other domestic duties by the peasantry, have nearly all disappeared, having been killed by their owners and others for food.

SHE HYPNOTIZED HIM.

Queer Story Told by the Friends of John B. Ransley.

Cincinnati, Oct. 20.—John B. Ransley, the confectioner, reported missing in New York, has been found at his mother's residence in this city. His mother says he has been under hypnotic influence ever since his marriage with Miss Edith Speer.

When called upon by a reporter to-day Mr. Ransley would say nothing to the questions asked except that "I am tied up." When asked in what manner he was "tied up" he did not reply. He declined even to name his attorneys, admitting that he had not consulted with them as yet.

LOG OF THE INLAND SEAS.

The Wreck of the Steamer Susan Peck.

The Birckhead to be Removed—New Light Ships—Matters of General Interest to Lake Men.

Amherstburg, Ont., Oct. 20.—The schooner Queen City has been released from Point Pelee by the Onaping.

Collector Gott has let the contract for removing the barge Birckhead, sunk at the Limekiln, to John Quinn of Detroit.

Two Vessels Saved by Tugs.

Cheboygan, Oct. 20.—The propeller Blanchard went ashore Sunday night ten miles above here and was released by a harbor tug; damage slight.

The schooner Columbia was ashore five miles up the straits, but was pulled off by the tug Strohn.

General Mention.

Detroit, Oct. 20.—The lightships for White shoals, Simmons reef and Gray's reef left for their destination this morning. They are fully equipped for service and besides their full complement of officers each boat has three extra men. The boats go up with their own power, but are convoyed by the Dahlia.

Orders have been given to have the piles which were driven around the Kasota's stern removed without delay so that the light at that point may be discontinued.

John Green, of Buffalo, owner of the Susan Peck, arrived down to-day. He thinks Capt. Swan will have the wreck removed in about three days.

ALL READY TO RESIGN.

Canada Having Trouble With Her Ministers.

Premier Abbott Has All the Resignations on His Inside Pocket Ready for an Emergency.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 20.—It is stated in reliable quarters that Premier Abbott holds in his hands the resignation of every member of his cabinet, his ministers having tendered their portfolios to the premier in view of the contemplated reconstruction of his ministry.

While these resignations have not been accepted it places Premier Abbott in a position to act freely when the time for reconstruction arrives, as all he has now to do is to accept any one of these resignations when he wishes to make room for new blood in his government.

This is following a precedent set by the colleagues of the late Sir John Macdonald, who as a matter of courtesy tendered on more than one occasion to the late premier their resignations when reconstruction was contemplated.

SUED FOR LIBEL.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 20.—Wm. S. Ridgel and George T. Melvin, publishers of the Maryland Republican were arrested Saturday on a charge of criminal libel preferred by Robert Moss, the democratic candidate for senator in this county. The prisoners were released on $500 bonds. The charge is based upon an article published in the paper attacking Mr. Moss, headed "Hayseed Kicking Again."

SHE HAD A CLOSE CALL.

A Young Woman Imprisoned in a Mine.

Shut Off from the Rest of Her Party by an Explosion.

Villagers Came to the Rescue and After Many Hours of Hard Work Succeeded in Rescuing the Girl.

Scranton, Penn., October 20.—A horrible accident occurred at the Moosic Mine, near here, yesterday, by which Mary Simmons, a young lady of Providence, was entombed.

Miss Simmons came here on a visit, and it was proposed by some of the Slocumb family, with whom she was visiting, that they would visit one of the coal mines and see some of the peculiar underground openings.

The Moosic mine, which has been idle for some time, was selected as the place of inspection, as it was supposed by them to be the least dangerous from the fact that it had been idle.

In this a sad mistake was made. After they had proceeded into the mine for some distance their course was changed. They passed through a door on the main gangway, and their guide failed to notice that they were going into a portion of the mine which long since had been abandoned.

After they had proceeded some distance another door was reached. Here the party stopped for a few minutes to view their surroundings, and Miss Simmons, unnoticed by her companions, opened the door with the intention of exploring inside. She had scarcely gotten within the door when a terrible explosion occurred.

All of the party were thrown violently against the "rib," and a terrible concussion which threw timbers out on the surface told those without that a violent explosion had occurred.

A rescuing party was at once formed by the village folks, who hastened into the mine.

All of the party, except Miss Simmons, were found slightly injured in the gangway. In the place where the door had stood a huge mass of coal was found. It was then discovered that a fall had succeeded the explosion and Miss Simmons was a prisoner.

After some time spent in "sounding," faint cries from within told that the lady was still alive. An energetic rescuing party from the village soon hastened to the scene, and at 11 o'clock last night they succeeded in reaching her. She was rescued alive and uninjured.

HUNTED FOR A LEAK.

They Found it, as is Usually the Case.

A Disastrous Natural Gas Explosion in Pittsburg—Three Persons Seriously Injured.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 20.—An explosion of natural gas occurred in Shaman's large carpet store on Federal street, Alleghany City, this morning, setting fire to the building and seriously injuring three persons.

The building is entirely destroyed and the fire is spreading. The explosion was caused by hunting for a gas leak.

The injured are F. G. Hilliard, an employe of the Alleghany Heating company; Wm. A. Snaman and an unknown woman. Hilliard was horribly burned and the physicians think he will not recover.

GALE OFF HALIFAX.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 20.—A heavy easterly gale, accompanied by heavy rain, raged in this region last night and early this morning. Further disasters to shipping are feared.

SEALERS RELEASED.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 20.—The British sealers Otto and E. B. Marvin, which were seized in Bering sea, have been released by direction of the lord commissioner of the admiralty.

RAUM'S RESIGNATION.

New York, Oct. 20.—The Herald this morning prints a Washington dispatch which it credits to the Post of that city, declaring positively that the resignation of Commissioner Raum is in the hands of Secretary Noble, to take effect Nov. 30.

THE WORK OF A FIEND.

Burning Acid Thrown in a Woman's Face.

No Clue to the Perpetrators and no Known Motive for the Awful Deed.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Nitric acid was thrown in the face of Mrs. F. A. Kunz, of No. 5548 Dearborn street, by an unknown man.

Mrs. Kunz was a young and handsome woman, but the acid has disfigured her face for life. Mrs. Kunz, who is the wife of a traveling man, was just returning from a trip down town and was in the act of entering her own door, when a stranger stepped out from between two houses and dashed the acid in her face and over her neck and hands.

He then ran out on the street and hurried away south, where he was picked up a moment later by a man who was driving a spirited horse attached to a light buggy.

The victim fell with a scream and writhed in agony upon the doorstep until help came and she was carried up to her room.

When a doctor arrived Mrs. Kunz's eyes were swollen shut, her lips protuded, her features were so contorted as to be unrecognizable, and the acid had driven her insane with pain.

The police did not learn of the affair until nearly midnight, when a search was made and a false mustache found a few feet from the steps. The broken bottle that had contained the acid and a whole bottle filled with the same fluid were found in the grass.

No clue to the identity of the man could be found and no motive for the crime can be surmised.

MANLY AGAIN TALKING.

Blaine Will Not Decline a Nomination.

Maine Will Not Present His Name, But Some State May be Induced To Do So.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The Hon. Joseph Manley is nothing if not frank, when he is not utterly silent. He says that Maine will not present Blaine's name in the next national convention, because Blaine does not want it done, but that he wants any such movement to start from some other state. If it does come, and it is unanimous, Blaine will accept the nomination.

REPORTS FROM THE RUSH.

She Traveled Thousands of Miles and Boarded Many Boats.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Capt. W. C. Coulson, of the revenue cutter Rush, in a report to the treasury department of the operations of the Rush in Bering sea, says that the vessel cruised 6,679 miles in the sea and boarded 23 vessels, sending a number of them out of the sea and taking several prisoners.

He says that if the president's proclamation had been issued in time to have been received by him and other revenue cutter officers in Bering sea by June 15, sealing in the sea could have been almost entirely prevented this year.

FLORIDA ALLIANCE.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 20.—Nearly 300 delegates to the Florida Farmers' alliance convention, which meets to-day, are in the city.

The sub-treasury scheme and a resolution committing the alliance men to the support of only alliance candidates at the next state election will be the principal topics before the convention.

STOCKHOLDERS MUST PAY.

Youngstown, Oct. 20.—In passing upon the case of the Mahoning National Bank v the William Anson Wood Mower and Reaper company, Judge Robinson has found that after the real estate and other assets of the defendant company have been exhausted there is still owing to creditors $81,681.59, which he orders shall be paid by the stockholders into the hands of Clerk of Courts Curry within five days.

LIMA COUPLE ELOPE.

Lima, Oct. 20.—Maggie Grove and Charles R. Avery have been lovers for many moons decidedly against the wishes of Maggie's parents. They were persistent, however, and although Maggie was yet in her teens they were not discouraged when her parents refused to give their consent, and a few days ago, when Maggie attained her majority, the young couple decided upon an elopement, which they erried out last night.

TELESCOPE FIRM DISSOLVES.

Boston, Oct. 20.—The noted telescope makers, Alvin G. and George B. Clark, of Cambridge, are to dissolve partnership. This step is taken for the sole reason that Mr. George B., the senior member, is physically unable to continue in active business, and desires to be relieved of all responsibility.

THE ALLIANCE IN THE SOUTH

Wade Hampton Interviewed on Its Future.

He Thinks it is Rapidly Going to Pieces and in a Few Years Will Be Entirely Extinct.

Baltimore, Oct. 20.—Ex-United States Senator Gen. Wade Hampton is visiting in this city. He said to a representative of the Sun that he is out of politics and intends for the future to keep in the background.

"The Farmers' alliance, he said, is rapidly disintegrating in the south, and within the next four years it will completely disappear, to live only in the memory of those who have benefited by the upheaval.

"This will be the case not only in South Carolina, but throughout the whole south. The people here are rapidly awakening to the absurdity of the demands the organization has promulgated, and are gradually dropping off and foreswearing all allegiance to the alliance.

"In my own state, the governor who was elected by the sentiment that secured my defeat for re-election to the senate, has already broken away in a great measure from the alliance measures and is catering in his administration of the affairs of the state to the conservative and better element.

"The uprising was founded on demagoguery and fanaticism and therefore cannot have a long existence. Moreover, the history of this country has shown that no secret political organization can live long or retain any lasting hold on the public.

"We are too conservative a people and too fair-minded in our judgment of right and wrong in popular government to permit any sway by secret societies. In my opinion it is folloy for any one in this country to enter into a controversy with a farmers' alliance adherent on the sub-treasury plan.

"The measure is so palpably wrong on its face as to make it absurd to all who have the prosperity and welfare of the country at heart. It can never become a law until passed by congress and its absurdity will prevent this, no matter how much demagogues may urge its enactment.

"This feature of the alliance has never been fully accepted in the south, and I have too much confidence in our people to think that it ever will be."

THE HATRED OF LONG YEARS

Still Burns in the Heart of the Hungarian.

An Incident at Buda Which Illustrates the Burning Desire of the People for Revenge on Russia.

Vienna, Oct. 20.—An incident is reported from Buda, Hungary, which illustrates the bitterness which remains in the Hungarian heart regarding the events of 1848, and the burning desire for revenge on Russia, which then intervened to quench the revolution in Hungary.

The Hungarian minister of public instruction, Count Csaky, has been compelled by popular pressure, to rebuke and suspend one Lutter, the head master of the state gymnasium at Buda, because he had forbidden boys at school to take part in celebrating October 6, the anniversary of the day in 1848 when 13 generals of the Hungarian army, who surrendered to the Russian marshal, Paskevitch, were cruelly hanged.

The master had not acted from any unpatriotic motive, but popular feeling was greatly aroused against him and the government was compelled to punish him.

MINERS STRIKE.

Pittsburg, Oct. 20.—The 2,000 foreigners whom the coal operators threatened to bring to Pittsburg to take the places of the striking miners did not arrive. Consequently there is no change in the situation. The strikers are in better spirits but are still apprehensive that the operators will carry out their threats.

STEELE WILL SUCCEED RAUM.

New York, Oct. 20.—A special dispatch to the Times from Washington says the report that Gov. Steele of Oklahoma is to be made commissioner of pensions is confirmed, although it is understood that the official announcement of the appointment will be deferred for several days.

A GAME OF FREEZE OUT.

How Russia Gets Money to Pay Her Way.

Force a Man to Put Up Large Bail and Then Order Him to Leave the Country.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 20.—M. Glasounoff, the Russian musical composer, in whose house was found a trunk containing revolutionary pamphlets, the trunk having been left there by a female nihilist, has been ordered to quit Russia.

This means a loss of 15,000 roubles to Glasounoff, that being the amount of bail which he placed in the hands of the police when first accused in connection with the matter.

Nobody seems to doubt the composer's innocence, and it is believed that he was sent out of the country so that the police might keep the bail he had deposited.

STATUE OF ADMIRAL FARRAGUT.

Boston, Oct. 20.—The statute of Admiral Farragut, by H. H. Kitson, for the city of Boston, has been completed at a cost of $22,500, and is said by critics to be a masterpiece in composition and modeling.

NATIONAL FARMERS' CONGRESS.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 20.—Gov. Fifer has appointed delegates to the eleventh annual meeting of the National Farmers' congress held at Sedalia, Mo., Nov. 10, 1891.

GONE BACK ON HIM

Can He Reach the Goal With His Load.

Harrison Joins Blaine in Opposing McKinleyism.

Leading Republicans Converted to Democracy.

They See the Folly of the Chinese Tariff Wall.

The Tin Soldier in Ohio, Loaded Down with High Tax Burdens, Gets No Encouragement from the Powers that Rule in Washington.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The administration has turned a complete somersault on the reciprocity question, and the president is now the loudest in the reciprocity pack.

When McKinley was at work constructing the Chinese wall tariff in the last congress the president was heartily in sympathy with him.

The appearance of Mr. Blaine with his glittering reciprocity scheme and his famous hat-smashing denunciation of the theory on which the bill was being framed was met with a storm of maledictions from the friends of the Chinese wall policy.

McKinley and his friends in private did not hesitate to pronounce Blaine a trickster who had sprung this new fangled latitudinal protection and longitudinal free trade scheme to make capital for himself.

They declared it was an airy nothing, without substance, the benefit of which, if there was any benefit, would accrue solely to the Latin-American countries to the south of us who wanted to buy and had nothing to sell.

President Harrison was as much incensed as McKinley. He has always distrusted his secretary of state because he has realized that in statecraft and politics he was no match for his prime minister.

Tough was Jimmy G., tough and devilish sly.

The president suspected everything he did and in the reciprocity scheme he saw a Trojan horse of mammoth proportions. Mr. Harrison, therefore, backed up McKinley in his fight against the introduction of the reciprocity lymph in the tariff bill. Blaine fought for it single-handed.

McKinley and his confreres tried to smother the controversy, and then Blaine began to fight the devil with fire. His open letters to Senator Hale aroused the country and the popular clamor forced the republican managers to insert the reciprocity clause in the tariff bill, restricted, however, as much as possible.

Since the passage of the McKinley bill and the negotiations of the reciprocity treaties, with their attendant increase of trade, and their many evidences of popular favor, the president has turned his back on the old-styled McKinley idea of protection and is now taking his with a large dash of reciprocity free trade.

The fact is that he has determined to take the game out of Mr. Blaine's hands, if possible, and out-Blaine Blaine as a reciprocity advocate.

The country has smacked its lips over reciprocity, and the country don't have to make its wishes known twice in the land of Harrison. Once is enough for him.

The reciprocity clause limits the articles on which the United States can arrange a basis for international exchange to coffee, tea, sugar, hides and skins.

The bulk of these imports comes to us from the South American countries, but the European countries send us enough of these articles to allow an entering wedge for the opening of markets there far more precious to us than the markets of South America.

The importation of coffee last year for instance, include $1,060,911 from France; $2,076,496 from Germany; $1,438,593 from England and $1,236,979 from the Netherlands. Of sugar the British West Indias imported $8,589,677, British Guiana $4,323,702 and Germany $16,051,431. England also imported $2,316,335 worth of skins and hides last year.

Unless some sort of reciprocal arrangements are made with these countries January 1, 1893, these articles will again go back on the dutiable list.

It is understtod on the authority of a member of the cabinet that the president proposes not only to shift the reciprocity scheme from South America so as to take in those European countries with which trade alliances could be made under the existing reciprocity clause, but that he is seriously considering the advisability of recommending to the next congress in his message the reduction of the duties on other imports in order that reciprocity treaties of a scope and range never dreamed of by framers of the reciprocity clause of the tariff bill may be negotiated.

He has been led to this conclusion, it is said, by a realization that the people of the country will no longer tolerate the Chinese wall policy. The fact that the president is looking around for an underground method of making a few breaches in the tariff wall is in itself a virtual confession that McKinley's tariff theory is a failure and destined to complete overthrowal unless the pill which the people have to swallow can be sugar coated.

In the meantime Mr. Blaine kept his eye on Benjamin. The scheme to rob him of his fame as the father of reciprocity has aroused the lion in him and from Augusta last week in his letter to John Hopley of the Bucyrus Journal, he warned trespassers to "keep off the grass."

He proposes to protect the paternity of the reciprocity bantling and no matter what its ramifications in future generations may be he is determined that he and he alone, shall be recognized as reciprocity as Morse is recognized as the father of the telegraph and Fulton of the steamboat.

He wants all the credit and he will get it just as Shakespeare, with all his wonderful power and genius, would take and receive the credit for all the adaptations and improvements of his plays if he could again visit the pale glimpses of the moon.

Blaine may or may not be reaching out for the presidency which has been the goal of his ambition. In either event he will not allow Mr. Harrison to steal the reciprocity scheme upon which he is to found his title to a full page in history.

While these two gentlemen down here are fighting for the glory of having drawn the teeth of the McKinley bill and filled it full of holes its author is out in Ohio running for governor on the issue of the very policy which the leaders of his party are repudiating.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Passaic, N. J., Oct. 20.—The warehouse of the Speer New Jersey Wine company caught fire at 1:20 o'clock this morning and in less than two hours the whole place was a mass of ruins. The loss will reach $100,000, partly insured.

The office and plant of the Passaic Item, which was located in the building, was also destroyed.

ALAS, THE RARITY

Of Christian Charity, as Evidenced in Mexico.

The Cream of Society in the Sunny Land,

Including Ladies High in Public Esteem,

Patronize a Bull Fight to Aid the Poor in Spain.

Nine Enraged Animals Tortured to Death Amid the Plaudits of the Upper Ten that a Few Dollars May Be Gathered for Sufferers.

City of Mexico, Oct. 20.—The revival of bull fighting in the City of Mexico Sunday was in the name of Charity.

A committee of ladies of this capital, with Mrs. Diaz, wife of the president, at their head, organized it for the benefit of the sufferers from the floods in Spain.

It was one of the greatest spectacles of the Mexican national sport ever witnessed on the North American continent.

The time set was 2:30 in the afternoon. For an hour previous San Francisco street, the Avinida Juaraz and the Paseo de La Reforma, presented a most animated scene.

Carriages of every degree from the landaus of ministers and senators, with cockades and liveries, down to the commonest hacks, jostled together on the way to the bull fight.

A stream of pedestrians, bent on the same errand, filled the sidewalks, while from the balconies and housetops thousands watched the passing throng.

At the plaza De Toros, the people came from every direction, but so perfect were the police arrangements that no difficulty or disorder was encountered, and the human tide poured into the great amphitheatre without delay or discomfort.

It is estimated that 12,000 people were within the enclosure. Two military bands were present and four companies of infantry served to insure good order. A long row of boxes, intended for President Diaz and his party, the committee of ladies and their friends and the members of the Spanish casino, were elaborately decorated with bunting, the Spanish colors and palm branches.

Presently a roll from the drums, a flourish of trumpets, followed by the national hymn by the band stationed outside the amphitheatre, announced the arrival of the president of the republic.

His appearance in his box was the signal for enthusiastic cheers from the spectators, salutes by the soldiers, and a repition of the national hymn by the band inside the enclosure.

The applause was genuine and universal. Hundreds of miniature Spanish and Mexican flags were unfurled and waved by the people during the posting of the Mexican ensign in front of the presidential box.

The president was evidently in excellent health and spirits, and advancing to the front of the box, acknowledged the cordial reception. Accompanying the president were Mrs. Diaz, the committee of ladies and a brilliant company composed of the very cream of Mexican society.

Nine bulls of celebrated breed were killed amid the "bravos" of the spectators. The animals had been trained for the occasion and many of the matadors had narrow escapes.

STORMS IN IRELAND.

Dublin, Oct. 20.—A hurricane prevails in west Ireland. The Shannon has overflowed, submerging much land, destroying buildings and drowning cattle. The storm is the worst for 20 years. A gale also rages on the channel, and the mail boats last night arrived at Kingstown badly damaged.

TRACING THE FUNDS.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 20.—President Sanford, of the Adams Express company, has filed in the United States circuit court a bill against John Hoey, setting forth that money of the express company was used to build the Hollywood properties at Long Branch.

BRAZILIAN AFFAIRS.

London, Oct. 20.—A Buenos Ayres dispatch says that Gen. Rocca and his family have left that city.

The senate has censured President Pelligrini for requesting Gen. Mitre not to abandon his candidacy.

BALFOUR'S APPOINTMENT.

London, Oct. 20.—The Pall Mall Gazette says of Balfour's appointment: "It will be a boon to the liberals to have opposed to them a man so specially identified with coercion in its most defiant form."

WILL RESIGN.

Boston, Oct. 20.—Rev. O. P. Gifford says he will present his resignation to Brookline church in a few days. He has been called to Chicago.

THE NEWS FROM FINDLAY.

A New K. of P. Lodge to be Dedicated.

A Suit for Heavy Damages Filed—Miscellaneous Gossip from the Brilliant City.

Findlay, O., Oct. 20.—(Special)—The McComb K. of P. lodge are completing extensive arrangements for dedicating a handsome new hall, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 27, with appropriate ceremonies. The new lodge room was usesl for the first time last evening. All the lodges in this section will be invited to assist in the dedication ceremonies.

Wants $15,000 Damages.

Matilda Calvin has commenced suit in common pleas court against William and Anna Calvin, her father-in-law and mother-in-law, for the above amount of damages for alienating the affections of her husband, and causing him to abandon her and her two small children. She claims they circulated false reports about her and did everything possible to ruin her reputation. Her husband left her in April last and left her destitute. The parties sued are worth considerable property.

Planing Mill Burned.

The principal industry, the large saw and planing mill of I. J. Bookmiller & Son, at Rawson, burned down yesterday afternoon, causing a loss of about $8,000, only partially covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is a mystery. This village has had its share of severe conflagrations. A son, about 21 years old, of Mr. Bookmiller, was just dying with typhoid fever during the fire, making a double blow for this unfortunate family.

Out On Bail.

William Ridgeley, who has been in jail for some time past on the serious charge of attempting to rape a little girl in the Heck addition, has been released from custody, having secured the amount of his bail.

For bronchial asthmatic and pulmonary complaints, "Brown's Bronchial Troches" have remarkable curative properties. Sold only in boxes.

CLEVELAND FAVORS HARRITY.

The Secretary of State Will Succeed Mr. Scott.

New York, Oct. 20.—Considerable interest is being manifested here in the selection of a successor to the late William L. Scott as the Pennsylvania member of the democratic national committee. This is especially so because of the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Herman Oelrichs. As the democratic state committee in New York is under the control of Governor Hill and his friends, it is believed that Mr. Oelrich's successor will be friendly to the nomination of David B. Hill for president.

The general impression here is that William F. Harrity, the secretary of state of Pennsylvania, will be chosen to succeed Mr. Scott as the member from Pennsylvania, and the announcement of the fact has been received with considerable favor here. The democratic politicians of New York have been watching the progress of Mr. Harrity as a democratic leader in Philadelphia and Pennsylvania, and they regard him as one of the most successful of the young men of the party.

It is related that ex-President Cleveland very recently expressed himself to a group of personal and political friends in New York as cordially approving the probable selection of Mr. Harrity as a member of the democratic national committee. It is known here that Mr. Cleveland considers Mr. Harrity as possessed of most excellent qualifications for leadership, and that he has great confidence in his capacity for organization.

MICHIGAN FARE CASE.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The supreme court of the United States to-day advanced the case of the Chicago and Grand Trunk Railway company against Thomas Wellman to be heard when a full bench is secured.

The case involves the constitutionality of an act passed by the Michigan legislature fixing passenger rates for more than five miles at from 2 to 3 cents per mile according to the mileage earnings of the road.

SIR HENRY WOOD AT HOME.

He Tells His People About the World's Fair.

Like Everybody Else the Englishman Has Been Captivated by the Push and Energy in Chicago.

London, Oct. 20.—The Times publishes an interview with Sir Henry Wood, the English commissioner to the world's fair at Chicago, who has just returned home from that city.

Sir Henry admitted that he has quite changed his original opinion that New York is the best city for the proposed exposition.

The citizens of Chicago, the commissioner said, were justly proud of their city, and he believed that their private munificence would supply any lack of necessary funds to make the exhibition a thorough success.

He was certain that the English exhibitors will meet with every possible facility. Sir Henry would advise them to send goods suited to South American consumption.

For the North American trade Sir Henry would suggest a display of all articles of art and luxury, specially paintings. English art being less well known to Americans than it deserved to be. He had been told that woolens, fine cloths, and hardware would also find a ready sale.

BETWEEN TWO FIRES.

Harrison's Coming Message to Congress.

He Will Wait Until After Election Before He Says Anything on the Tariff Question.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 20.—President Harrison has not yet begun work on his message, nor will he do so until after the 3d of November.

One reason is that he wants to see how the elections turn out before he formulates his recommendations about the tariff and the silver question.

If, for example, McKinley carries Ohio by a large majority, the president would lay emphasis on the McKinley bill; if he should be defeated he would lay emphasis on the Blaine end of that measure—in either event claiming credit for himself and his administration in connection with it.

The only thing beyond the usual review of the work of the departments upon which the president seems to have absolutely determined is another recommendation for the resurrection of the force bill.

The other reason why he delays the preparation of his message is his uncertainty as to Blaine's condition and Blaine's return.

The secretary of state is the only member of the cabinet who makes no annual report. Instead, he usually prepares the opening paragraphs of the president's annual message relating to foreign affairs.

Until the president knows definitely whether Blaine can or cannot nominally or actually perform this customary office he cannot well prepare the first part of his message.

VANDERBILT'S YACHT.

The Case Taken Up by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The federal supreme court has granted the motion made by Solicitor General Taft last week to file a petition for a writ of prohibition in behalf of J. S. Fassett, late collector of customs at New York, against the judge of the U. S. district court for the southern district of New York to stay the court from proceeding as a court of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction to hear and determine a libel filed by Frederick F. Vanderbilt against the steam yacht Conqueror and Collector Fassett to recover possession of the vessel from Mr. Fassett's custody.

The court ordered that a rule be entered that the judge of the district court show cause why a writ of prohibition shall not issue as prayed for, returnable on the first Monday in November.

NATURAL GAS GALORE.

Pittsburg is Once More Made Happy.

The Companies Will Guarantee a Fuel Supply for the Next Five Years.

Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—Pittsburg will have plenty of gas this winter, and for the next four or five years to come. This is the statement that the Philadelphia company is prepared to make. Within two weeks, the officials of that company say, they will have a pressure of 40 pounds to the square inch on their 36-inch main. The increased supply comes from five new fields, viz., McGahey, Elizabeth, Moon township, Stowe township and the Franklin and Ohio township fields.

This supply will be more than is needed for domestic use and for the mills now supplied by the Philadelphia company. Beside the people who are supplied in the two cities by the Philadelphia company, the following towns are also guaranteed a full supply: Monongahela City, McKeesport, Homestead, Mansfield and Tarentum. The company will guarantee a supply for five years.

ELEVENTH DAY'S SESSION.

Progress Made by the Ecumenical Congress.

The Church and Public Morality Discussed.

Lotteries, Betting, Gambling and Kindred Devices Receive Attention—General Routine Work.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The eleventh day's session of the Ecumenical Methodist conference was presided over by Wm. Marsden, of Doncaster, England, Wesleyan Reform union. The topic for the day was "The church and public morality."

Reports from the business committee were made and a memorial was presented to the conference and adopted to set aside the work commencing November 15th as a week of prayer.

The committee on statistics made a report to the conference on the statistics of Methodism which shows an increase of adherents of 30 per cent. since 1881.

In giving the increase in each country there was some discussion as to whether the persentages of increase was over estimated, but Rev. Wm. Morley, of Australia, read a table of statistics which showed that the percentages were under, rather than over estimated.

Dr. Stevenson moved a note be appended to the statistics explaining the basis of calculation of the statistics. This was adopted as was the report on statistics. The evening session of Tuesday was set for the time of final adjournment of the conference.

An executive commission appointed by the business committee, consisting of 50 members from the western section and 30 members of the eastern section selected from the different bodies, was appointed to act on matters relative to the next ecumenical conference, their actions being subject to the approval of their respective churches.

Strong arguments were made against the appointment of this commission, by some delegates who thought it was presumptuous on the part of the business committee, when the churches themselves should appoint their representatives.

Two invited addresses were delivered, the first on lotteries, betting, gambling and kindred vices, delivered by Rev. Joseph Posnett, of Hull, England, Wesleyan Methodist church.

The second address was made by Hon. Hiram L. Sibley, of Marietta, O., Methodist Episcopal church, on marriage and divorce laws.

Rev. W. V. Tudor, of Richmond, Va., M. E. church south, read the essay on legal restraint on the vices of society; Hon. B. W. Hill, of Georgia, was to have read this paper, but was absent.

Mr. Tudor said that men could not be made moral by law but could be made immoral by its acts, and he cited the case of the state of Louisiana granting a license to the lottery company in that state which was immoral business and undoubtedly made men immoral. The granting of licenses to gambling saloons, for the sake of party patronage, was immoral.

The legal restraint of vices of society is establishing morality by law. Public opinon, he said, was the power behind the law, and the Christian people are responsible for the enactment of the laws by the logic bodies.

Rev. Joseph Ponsett, of Hull, England Wesleyan Methodist church, in an invited address, said that betting and gambling had become rapid and widespread. It was an international blizzard causing ruin and poverty wherever it prevailed.

The gambling of the stock exchange is the same in spirit as gambling on the turf. Christianity, he said, should sweep these evils from the earth.

Hon. H. M. Sibley, of Marietta, O., Methodist Episcopal church, spoke on marriage and divorce laws. He said Roman Catholics assert that there can be no divorce except by death, while the Protestants believe that desertion and adultery are grounds for divorce.

Rev. J. H. Johnson spoke against church enterprises which permitted games of chance, as they might have a bad effect upon the young.

Rev. J. S. Simon of Kent, England, Wesleyan Methodist church, said that the English delegates coming over to this country were surprised at the gambling on the ocean steamers. He said that they could not even get any information from the officers of the vessel as to the course of the vessel, its speed and location, their inquiry being met by the answer that pools had been made on the speed of the ship's trip and they could give no information. The way to prevent this evil, he said, was for this conference to express its opinion against the companies who permitted this gambling.

The secretary announced that the Thirteenth Street Methodist church of Philadelphia had presented each delegate with a picture of John Wesley and a Philadelphia committee invited the delegates to attend a reception in their honor at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia; also that Bishop Simpson would receive the delegates and their families at his home in Philadelphia on the 21st instant.

THE BOYD-THAYER CASE.

The Supreme Court Takes it Under Advisement.

The Democrats' Term Will Have Expired by the Time the Court Gets Ready to Act.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Ex-Attorney General Garland, acting as counsel for James E. Boyd, plaintiff in error, made a motion in the supreme court of the United States to-day to advance for argument the case of Boyd v. John M. Thayer, known as the Nebraska gubernatorial case. J. L. Webster, acting for Governor Thayer, opposed the motion, stating that the attorneys for his client would not be ready to appear and argue the case until after the Christmas holidays. The court took the matter under advisement.

The Boyd-Thayer case has attracted considerable attention throughout the country. Boyd was elected governor of Nebraska on the democratic ticket, to succeed Thayer, republican, who did not run for a second term. Before Boyd could be inaugurated the case was brought into court on the contention that he was not a citizen of the United States, being of foreign birth and never having been naturalized. The supreme court of the state of Nebraska affirmed this contention and Thayer continued to act as governor. Boyd appealed to the federal supreme court.

Mr. Garland contends that nearly one-half of Boyd's term of office as governor must expire before the case can be determined, no matter how early a decision may be given, and that if the case is permitted to remain on the docket the whole term will expire and another gubernatorial election will be held in Nebraska. It will be remembered that there was some interest manifested as to whom President Harrison would recognize as governor of Nebraska while he was in Omaha last May, returning from his grand circuit of the country.

Just before he reached Omaha the Nebraska supreme court decided that Boyd was not a citizen and the president, consequently, recognized Thayer.

FRENCH AGGRESSION.

Paris, Oct. 20.—French troops in Algeria have been ordered to seize the Oases of Touat, which is claimed by Morocco.

Health is wealth. Take Simmons Liver Regulator for all sickness caused by diseased liver.

EGAN DEFENDS HIMSELF.

He Files a Cablegram to Washington.

Valparaiso, Chili, via Galveston, Tex., Oct. 20.—Minister Egan has delivered a dispatch to the provisional minister of foreign affairs, clearly defining the status of the political refugees now in the American legation.

In the document he cites copiously precedents for his course in extending an asylum to these persons and defines his rights. He also gives reasons why his demand for the safe conduct of the refugees should be granted.

He calls attention to a special case in point where a Peruvian political refugee fled to the Chilian legation in Lima for protection. The Peruvian government insisted upon the surrender of the man, but the demand was refused by the Chilian minister, who, at the same time requested a safe conduct for the refugee aboard a Chilian vessel.

His request was granted and the refugee was removed to a Chilian gunboat at Calloa.

There will probably be no reply to Minister Egan's communication by the Junta until after the elections. The entire correspondence between the Junta and Mr. Egan furnishes a noteworthy review of the rights of political refugees under the protection of foreign legations.

The hopes of the conservatives are considerably reduced. Instead of the 55 deputies whom they had claimed they now say that the number will not exceed 47.

If the conservative party gains the result will be that the inimical feeling against the United States will be intensified.

The chances that the provisional President Admiral Jorge Montt, will be a candidate, grow better.

THE GOOD WORK STARTED.

Boodlers Placed Under Arrest in Canada.

Senecal the First Man and Others Will Likely Follow in a Few Days—Excitement in Ottawa.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 20.—Considerable excitement was caused here last night among members of the civil service when it was learned that the minister of justice had started his criminal prosecution of those whose boodling propensities were disclosed before the parliamentary committee last session by the arest at Montreal yesterday of Senecal, the late superintendent of printing.

The arrest of Senecal is a direct blow at the Hon. J. A. Chapleau, secretary of state, whose influence had been used throughout to save his friend.

BOARD OF MISSIONS.

A RAILROADER'S LIFE.

Filled With Constant Danger—The Experience of Mr. G. R. Updyke and His Statements of His Rescue.

Every business in life has its accompanying dangers, but from the numerous accidents in which both life and limb are lost it would seem that railroading is the most hazardous. Not only are those thus engaged subject to accidental dangers but their work, exposed as they are to all kinds of weather, renders them more liable to disease, especially catarrhal affections.

Mr. G. R. Updyke, yard-conductor of the Pennsylvania lines in Toledo, residing at 2101 Erie street, in speaking of his many troubles said:

Mr. G. R. Updyke, 2101 Erie street, Toledo.

"I have suffered most miserably for five years. I had occasional violent headaches. My eyes were weak and watery and my nose was continually stopped up. This was due somewhat to the accumulation of mucus, more especially to a number of Nasal Polypi that filled both nostrils. I had to continually hawk and spit. I felt tired in the morning. I had occasional stabbing, at other times dull, pains about the region of the heart.

"I could scarcely breath at times, but after taking treatment of Drs. Copeland and Buffett, who immediately removed the polypi without the slightest pain or loss of blood, my breathing at once became much improved. My pains, aches and troubles almost miraculously disappeared until now I feel better than I have felt for years." They have worked such a great change in my condition that I unhesitatingly recommend them to all those who suffer."

Representative Men.

MR. C. E. McLEAN, 935 Indiana avenue connected with Roth & Freedman's dying establishment, says: "Drs. Copeland and Buffett worked wonders in my case. My catarrhal trouble has disappeared under their skillful treatment. I cannot recommend them too highly.

MR. N. R. DULL, 2215 Lorlie street, contracting carpenter, says: "I recommend Drs. Copeland and Buffett as physicians of marked ability. They relieved me of a catarrhal complaint of long standing.

MR. JOSEPH COOMBS: watchman at the "Blade" building, residing 383 Indiana avenue, says: "To the diligent, faithful, scientific and skillful treatment I received of Drs. Copeland and Buffett do I attribute the fact of my being restored to health."

MR. EUGENE McCARTHY, a member of the Toledo police force, residing at 316 Knower street, says: "Drs. Copeland and Buffett cured me of an aggravating hay fever and I unhesitatingly recommend these physicians."

A Challenge.

Drs. Copeland and Buffett offer $1,000 to any one who will disprove one of their printed statements. This challenge is made in good faith, and will be kept standing in these columns.

FATHER BRAIRE DEAD.

The Honored Pastor of St. Joseph's Passes Away.

He Dies in His Chair Without a Word or a Sign After Returning from Memorial Hall—Arrangements for the Funeral.

Rev. Louis Braire, the honored pastor of St. Joseph's French church on Erie street, is dead, and the entire congregation mourns.

He died suddenly of heart disease at about 1:15 o'clock this morning, just after returning from the St. Joseph celebration at Memorial hall.

He felt in good spirits while in the hall and spoke with a Bee of the celebration and arrangements he was making for coming events.

He felt a little worried and somewhat nettled over the failure of some of the speakers to appear, but otherwise was in the best of humor.

He left the hall shortly after midnight with members of his congregation. On reaching his home on Locust street, next the church, he went into the kitchen, as was his wont, to have a smoke. While smoking he talked with the housekeeper, Miss Annie Lemerand, of the celebration, and felt happy over the result.

Suddenly he ceased speaking, the pipe dropped from his lips and the housekeeper, looking up in alarm, saw his head had fallen to one side. In vain she tried to arouse him. He was dead. He had died in the harness, thinking and working for the people whom he so loved and who loved him as heartily in return.

Physicians were summoned, but without avail. Life was extinct and the pastor of St. Joseph's was no more.

The housekeeper is an old and valued servant, having lived with Father Braire ever since he came to Toledo, about eight years ago. Speaking of his death to a Bee this morning she said:

"It was so sudden that I am unable yet to realize that he is dead. It was only last night at supper that he spoke of his death. He was anxious to leave everything in such a shape that there would be no trouble when he was gone.

He said he did not want any display; a $15 coffin would be good enough, but desired to be buried in a certain purple vestment and an alb sent him as a present some time ago by his aunt in France."

Rev. Louis Braire was born in France in 1845, and he would have been 56 years of age March 17 next. He came to Toledo eight years ago from Ravenna, O., and has been pastor of St. Joseph's church, corner of Erie and Locust streets, ever since.

His parish extended far outside the city and he was a regular visitor among the French settlements along the Bay shore. He said last evening that he intended going to Big Ditch to-day on a pastoral visit.

Father Braire was thoroughly American in his sentiments, as his address at Memorial hall last night, printed elsewhere, illustrates. As a priest he was beloved by his congregation, and as a citizen honored and respected.

Upon hearing of his death Mr. Joseph Dupuey, president of St. Joseph's society, notified the local Catholic pastors and telegraphed Rev. Mgr. Boff at Cleveland.

Rev. Dr. Quigley, Rev. Father Hannin and a number of other priests met at the residence of the dead priest shortly after to make the necessary arrangements for the funeral. Mgr. Boff wired back that he would make the necessary arrangements for the funeral and that it be held on Friday, which suggestion was adopted and the funeral will take place on that day from St. Joseph's church. The Catholic societies will attend in bodies and a large number of outside pastors will be present.

The scenes of sorrow at the residence this morning showed the love and esteem in which the dead pastor was held.

FREE MAIL DELIVERY.

The Farmers Are in the Swim This Year Certainly.

New York, Oct. 20.—An organized effort is under way among the farmers to secure from congress free mail delivery in country towns.

The Farmers' alliance, Patrons of Husbandry and other orders are canvassing the matter. Letters are being written to congressmen in favor of the project, and petitions to congress for free delivery are being circulated in many parts of the country.

Farmers assert that a daily mail delivery at their door will add perceptibly to the money values of their farms, and will be worth still more because it will keep them in touch with markets and the outside world and rob farm life of its isolation and monotony.

The farmers are writing to the agricultural press that the convenience would enable them quite generally to take a daily paper as well as to subscribe for the local papers more liberally.

VAN BUREN ENJOINED

From Tearing Up or Injuring the Toledo Natural Gas Pipe Line.

As was stated in the Bee the people of Van Buren threatened to tear up the pipes of the city of Toledo, leading from the natural gas well in that village to the Toledo pipe line. In order to prevent this Assistant City Solicitor Watts went to Findlay yesterday and secured an injunction prohibiting the village of Van Buren or the mayor or marshal thereof from tearing up the city natural gas pipe line or in any way interfering with the gas or well.

"That is how the matter stands at present," said Solicitor Read, "and if they make a motion to dissolve the injunction we will try the case. The laying of pipe to this well in the village may or may not have been in violation of the ordinance of that village prohibiting any pipe line within 100 feet of any building, but that ordinance is not worth the paper it is written on."

AN ACTIVE CHERRY TREE.

Hartford City, Ind., Oct. 20.—Wm. McIntyre, of this county, brought in several stems of ripe cherries, the second crop of the season of 1891. The fruit is well-formed and delicious. Mr. McIntyre states that the tree has blossomed out for a third crop, but he does not expect the cherries to mature, the time until cold weather occurs being too short.

JUDGE HIGGENBOTHAM DEAD.

Frankfort, Ind., Oct. 20.—Judge B. K. Higgenbotham of this city died very suddenly at Springfield yesterday. It is supposed that it was due to his physical inability to stand the rigid treatment of the Keeley institute under which he went to place himself for a cure of the drink habit, to which he has for years been addicted.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

London, Oct. 20.—A dispatch from Buenos Ayres announces the resignation of Dr. Vicente F. Lopez, minister of finance of the Argentine Republic.

A Montevideo dispatch states that Don Alcides Montero, the Urguayan minister of finance, who tendered his resignation on Saturday last, has reconsidered his determination and will remain in the cabinet.

GOLD COMING BACK.

London, Oct. 20.—Bullion to the amount of 150,000 pounds was withdrawn from the Bank of England for shipment to New York yesterday.

HARTER ON CAMPBELL.

The Mansfield Statesman Predicts a Victory for Ohio Democracy.

M. D. Harter, the eminent tariff reformer and congressman, paid Toledo a flying visit to-day and is enthusiastic over democratic prospects in Ohio. He stopped for the few hours he was in the city with his friend and old townsman, Mr. Franc, of the Hamilton.

"The prospects of the democrats in the state have wonderfully improved within the last two weeks," he said in response to a query. "The farmers are awaking to the fact that the McKinley bill is destructive to their interests. I will be much surprised if Campbell is not elected by a larger majority than that of two years ago."

Mr. Harter left at 1:20 for his home in Mansfield, where he will spend a day or two before again taking the stump.

THE MOTION OVERRULED.

The Ohio Ballot Law Will Stand.

The Supreme Court Has Rendered a Decision of Great Importance to Ohio Voters.

Columbus, O., Oct. 20.—The supreme court this morning overruled Judge Thompson's motion to compel Attorney-General Watson to bring suit to test the constitutionality of the Australian ballot law.

NEWS OF THE RAIL.

Points of Interest Concerning the Great Net of Steel.

Rumor of a Lake Shore Appointment—Earnings—Superintendent Rockwell's Resignation.

It is rumored that the Big Four is grinding up the official ax and that the heads of several agents will soon drop in the basket for receiving commissions, following in the footsteps of the Lake Shore in this particular.

The discharged Lake Shore agents are finding very little difficulty in securing positions. It is reported that these agents have been notified by commission paying roads to send in their vouchers at once, with the assurance of prompt payment.

It Is a Rumor.

A rumor is current on the streets to-day that George W. Reistane had been appointed traffic manager of the Lake Shore. The office has been recently created in the directory of the Lake Shore and an appointment is to be made.

Mr. Reistane formerly was manager of the Erie Despatch, but resigned that position some time ago.

Will Increase the Capital Stock.

The directory of the Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo railroad have decided to increase the capital stock of that incorporation, by issuing 25,000 shares of $100 each. A meeting of the stockholders will be called for November 12 to confirm this resolution. After this the present holders of stock will be given an opportunity to purchase 20,000 shares of the new stock at $50 per share, each stockholder allowed to subscribe at this price 17 per cent. of his holdings.

Of Interest to Shippers.

The Central Traffic association issued the following circular which is of interest to shippers:

When the traffic is contracted for shipment by rail to lake ports and thence by lake and rail to eastern destinations and arrives at the lake ports after navigation has closed and is tendered to the rail lines there for all-rail transportation, the rates east of such points of transfer will be the proportions due therefrom of the all-rail tariff rates in effect at the original points of shipment. The traffic so changed will be entitled, under these rates and conditions, to the rule authorizing changes in consignees and destinations.

Railway Earnings.

The Wheeling & Lake Erie earned $28,370 for the second week in October, an increase of $2,784 over the same week of last year.

For the first week of October the B. & O. Southwestern earned $53,872, an increase of $5,098; Chesapeake & Ohio $176,730, an increase of $19,568; Toledo & Ohio Central $28,306, a decrease of $5,402; Wabash $294,911, a decrease of $5,782; Big Four $281,641, a decrease of $27,761.

Will Lease a Line.

The stockholders of the Columbus, Shawnee & Hocking met in Columbus yesterday and voted to lease the Sandusky & Columbus, Lake Erie & Southern Short Line, providing certain conclusions incorporated in the lease can be reached.

An election of officers was held, which resulted as follows:

President, P. W. Huntington; vice-president and general manager, F. J. Picard; secretary and general solicitor, W. E. Guerin; treasurer, H. D. Turney; Messrs. D. S. Gray, Charles Parrott, G. C. Hoover and Samuel Huston of the city, Messrs. D. B. Hatch and H. W. Putnam of New York city, and Chase Andrews of Zanesville.

Superintendent Rockwell Resigns.

General Superintendent Charles H. Rockwell, of the Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo road, has submitted his resignation, to take effect November 1.

Mr. Rockwell took this action to accept the general superintendency of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois, and the Chicago & Indiana, a coal route, two splendid roads under one management. Mr. Rockwell has many friends in Toledo who wish him the utmost success.

A Few Cinders.

Agent Dumbaugh, of the Wabash, was in Columbus on business yesterday.

A. C. Barstow has been appointed vice president of the Cleveland and Canton road.

John W. Clarkson has been appointed train master of the C., A. and C. with headquarters at Mt. Vernon.

The brick, clay and sand committees of the Central Traffic association will meet at Columbus next Tuesday.

The Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo has let a contract to a Pittsburg firm for 10 new mogul engines, to be delivered next May and June. This road is increasing its equipment with its gigantic business.

The Clover Leaf will take a large delegation of Brotherhood of St. Andrew to St. Louis to-morrow night. Delegates from Cleveland, Youngstown, Sandusky, Detroit and Toledo go via Clover Leaf.

SOME SPICY CURRENT TOPICS

Of Local and Neighborhood Interest.

Notes and Comments on Incidents Occurring Daily—Prepared for Readers Who are Hustled for Time.

IT WAS BAD MONEY.

Anthony Barnett was arrested last night on the charge of attempting to pass one of the Toledo Business college $10 bills on a dealer on Canton avenue in payment of a bill. The case was continued in police court until to-morrow morning.

ALICE ENRIGHT DEFEATED.

In the yacht race at Detroit yesterday, the Josephine defeated the Alice Enright two miles, but neither boat made the course in the required time and another race will be sailed.

BONDS DID NOT SELL.

The ways and means committee last evening were to sell two lots of improvement bonds—Summit street, $75,342; Floyd street, $5,380—but there being no bids, the bonds were not sold. The committee authorized the auditor to sell the bonds at private sale for par and accrued interest.

NEW CITY OFFICES.

The city auditor's new office in the Masonic temple is nearly completed and Auditor Walker expects to get into his new quarters about the last of this week or the first of next. As soon as his department is out of the present office, work will be commenced fitting it up for the water works office.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF ELECTIONS.

The board of elections met yesterday afternoon and transacted routine business. Secretary King has school every day, and always has a good attendance of the county force anxious to receive instructions on the new system of voting.

CITY ENGINEER BUSY.

Nearly half of the city engineer's force is at present engaged in figuring out eletric light assessments. The engineer this season has been obliged to employ about 30 men, nearly twice as many as ever employed in this department before. They have all been kept busy and the department is still behind with its work.

ARRANGING FOR A RECEPTION.

The working board of the First Congregational church, supplemented by a large number of ladies of the congregation, met yesterday afternoon for the purpose of making arrangements for a reception to their new pastor, Rev. D. M. Fisk it was decided to appoint a committee tee and otherwise arrange for the reception, but until the arrival of Mrs. Fisk no date can be set.

THEY ARE STILL AT IT.

The street railway companies are throwing hot shot into each others' ranks every day.

The Consolidated last evening filed a motion to vacate and dissolve the injunction applied for by Dennis Coghlin, a tax payer. A temporary injunction was granted, restraining the Consolidated from erecting a trolley wire on Summit street.

Bright and early thsi morning the Robisons got back by filing a motion to modify and dissolve the temporary injunction granted the city of Toledo, restraining them from constructing a second track in Hoag street.

TWO PLEASURE CLUBS.

The Emmet Pleasure club reorganized for the season last evening. After the admission of members, officers were elected as follows: President, Harry Waters; vice-president, Thomas Butler; secretary, Oliver Waters; treasurer, Rob O'Grady. The club will give a party at Chamberlain's hall December 2.

The Swiss-Cheese club has also organized with the following members: Frank Fagan, George Holland, Ed Kemper, Philip Robinson, Al Clark, Pal Melrose. Elmer Holst is president and John Brawn secretary and treasurer. The club has elegant parlors.

SEA COAST LANDS.

Washington, Oct. 20.—In the supreme court of the United States C. M. Fox, of San Francisco, has made a motion to postpone the case of the State of California vs. the United States, to determine which party in the suit has right of title of land between high and low water mark in the city of San Francisco. Mr. Fox said the postponement was asked in order that the case might be heard by a full bench, three justices being absent at present.

CARNEGIE ENTERS THE FIELD

He Will Break Up the Standard Oil Company.

A New Mammoth Oil Pipe Line to Be Built With a Capacity of 40,000 Barrels Daily.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 20.—It is announced here that the Standard Oil company is to have opposition. A route has been surveyed for a pipe line from Pittsburg to Philadelphia, and men are now going over this route securing the right of way.

The cost of the line, which will have a carrying capacity of 40,000 barrels per day, is estimated at $1,000,000 and is to be finished by March 1. Branch lines will also be laid into the West Virginia fields.

Andrew Carnegie and the Melon Brothers are said to be the backers of W. L. Mellon in building this new line.

In a magazine article sometime ago Mr. Carnegie stated that all great monopolies would fail, and said that the entering wedge for the dismemberment of the Standard Oil company was in Pittsburg in the person of a young man.

A BIG VIRDICT.

Beanden is Awarded $2,300 Damages Against the Lake Shore.

The jury in the case of Beanden against the Lake Shore railway company which has been on hearing in Judge Lemmon's court for the last five days returned a verdict this morning for the plaintiff, fixing the damages at $2,500.

This was an action brought to recover $5,00 damages for personal injury sustained while in the employe of the defendants.

The petition was filed March 8, 1890, and in March, 1891, was tried before Judge Pugsley. The jury returned a vedict for the plaintiff, allowing $2,625 damages. The court set this verdict aside, and a new trial was ordered with the results as above stated.

HAVING A HARD TIME.

Republican Funeral at Upper Sandusky.

After Three Attempts the Party Managers Find a Man with Nerve Enough to Run.

Upper Sandusky, Oct. 20.—(Special)—Another hand full of republicans representing the counties of Wyandot, Seneca and Crawford met here this morning for the third time to nominate a candidate for senator for this district, the 31st.

They finally decided upon Grattan H. Baker of Seneca county and he was nominated.

Then they resolved themselves into a judicial convention and nominated Edward Volrath of Bucyrus for common pleas judge for this district, composed of the counties of Crawford, Wyandot and Marion.

TROUBLE OVER THE WIRES.

The New York Associated Press Cut Off.

Big Lease Lines no Longer at Their Service.

Vigorous Action Taken by the Western Union Telegraph Company to Enforce Payment of a Large Sum.

New York, Oct. 20.—Much interest has been excited in journalistic circles by the announcement of a misunderstanding between the Western Union company and the Associated Press and many wild rumors are in circulation. The following statement from Mr. W. B. Somerville, press agent of the Western Union telegraph company, tells the situation:

The difficulty is about alleged obligations to the Western Union Telegraph company for leased wires, and the wires about which the difficulty arose are leased by the New York Associated Press.

The wires leased for the use of the Western Associated Press have been paid for, those for the New York Associated Press have not been settled for and the obligation counts from June last to the present time, the amount being about $25,000.

The joint committtee of the New York and Western Associated Press first took the matter in hand. That committee consists of representatives of the New York Herald, New York Tribune, New York Sun, Louisville Courier-Journal and the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

The question at issue was by them referred to the members of the joint committee representing the New York Associated Press.

The latter concluded not to pay the Western Union company on the ground that it was offset by overcharges.

The Western Union accordingly notified the New York Associated Press yesterday that its leased wires would be cut off at once and it was done.

The wires in question are one wire from New York to Chicago, two wires from New York to Washington, one wire from Washington to Richmond and Norfolk, and one wire from Memphis to New Orleans.

MADE AN ASSIGNMENT.

A Loan Company in Philadelphia in Trouble.

With the Present State of Affairs in the Quaker City It Is No Wonder Business Men Are Alarmed.

Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—In order to avoid certain legal complications that have recently arisen, the supreme officers of the Beneficial Loan fraternity yesterday made a voluntary assignment for the benefit of the certificate holders to Joseph W. Kenworthy, jr.

The Beneficial Loan fraternity is the first long term order to go under. It was a six-year order, chartered in Pennsylvania. Its supreme officers are located in this city and they are: Supreme president, Dr. A. H. P. Leuf; supreme secretary, Elmer E. Krauss, and supreme treasurer, Henry E. Cornog.

The loan fraternity has an annual branch which is also included in the deed of assignment.

THE POLICE JURY QUESTION

Presented to Common Pleas Court in Joint Session.

Able and Exhaustive Arguments Made by Counsel—A Point Raised on the Side.

The cases of Jacobi and Salisbury against the state, appealed on error from the police court to common pleas, was tried and submitted to a full bench yesterday afternoon. Among other points raised was the question involving the validity of the ordinance providing for the manner and method of selecting jurymen in police court. This is the all-important point of the issue and on which a joint hearing was requested by all parties interested.

Prosecutor Barber, Deputy Sumner and Police Prosecutor Wheeler represented the state, and J. D. Fort, James L. Pilliod and Byron Ritchie appeared for the plaintiffs in error.

The case was presented in regular form, and the objections made by the plaintiff in error taken up and submitted in succession. A greater part of the argument was devoted to the point raised as to the constitutionality of the ordinance, full particulars of which have appeared in the Bee at various times.

During this argument Judge Pugsley called Mr. Ford's attention to a section of the constitution which provided that judges other than those named in the constitution shall be elected by the electors of the judicial district for which they may be chosen, and solicited his (Mr. Ford's) views upon that section. The question thus raised was whether in view of that section the district of the police court should not be construed to mean the city alone, the police judge being chosen and elected for the city.

Mr. Ford in his reply suggested that the only question raised by that section would be whether the police judge should not be elected by the electors of both the city and the strip of four miles around the city, provided for by the statute as the jurisdiction of the police court.

The case was submitted and decision reserved.

IRISHMEN MUST GET TOGETHER.

Dublin, Oct. 20.—The Freeman's Journal to-day says that a strong feeling in favor of a determined effort in the direction of reconciliation exists throughout the country.

The Journal adds that if the measure of home rule granted by the liberals is inadequate, it will again become necessary to coerce them into submission. This could only be done by a united party.

MERITED THE ENMITY.

London, Oct. 20.—The Times' Valparaiso dispatch says impartial evidence confirms the statement that the United States squadron in Chilian waters, both in words and deeds, displayed enmity towards the congressional navy during the recent war.

IN TRADING CIRCLES

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles.

London wheat market to arrive, upward tendency. Weather cold and clear. Liverpool wheat quiet, steady, unchanged.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points are 1,590,075 bu., compared with 566,889 bu. on the same day last year.

The imports into the United Kingdom for the week were 2,024,000 bu. of wheat and 189,000 barrels of flour, equal to 2,877,000 bu. of wheat, and 1,180,000 bu. of corn.

The quantity of flour and wheat on ocean passage decreased last week 1,144,000 bu., being an increase to the United Kingdom of 48,000 bu., and a decrease to the continent of 1,192,000 bu. Corn decreased 288,000 bu.

Our table herein of available wheat and corn shows an increase of 537,560 bu wheat, and a decrease of 1,923,751 bu corn.

The Northwestern Miller has reports from 233 mills giving their flour output for September. With a daily capacity of 145,060 bbls, they produced for the month named 2,611,522 bbls. In August 267 mills representing 158,610 bbls capacity, ground 2,598,516 bbls.

Liverpool, Oct. 20.—Special cable to Daily Trade Bulletin: Shipments of breadstuffs to England during the past week, 3,320,600 bu; to continent, 4,370,000 bu; total, 7,690,000 bu. Requirements, 7,000,000 bu. Market rather easy. There will probably be a moderate reduction in German import duty.—Corn Trade News.

American Pork for Italy.—New York, Oct. 19.—President Louis Contenince, of the Italian chamber of commerce, has received a cablegram from the Italian cabinet ministry at Rome, stating that it had unanimously decided to abolish the decree against American pork. A proclamation will be issued to that effect by the Italian government.

Our Rye Crop.—The rye crop of the United States is estimated at 32,500,000 to 33,000,000 bu. It is claimed that the home requirements for milling, distilling and seed will be about 20,000,000 bu, leaving 12,500,000 to 13,000,000 bu. for export. Of the latter about 4,300,000 bu. were exported up to October 1, and there is about 3,000,000 bu. in transit and in exports since that time, leaving a surplus at present of about 5,000,000 to 5,200,000 bu.

Russian Wheat Stocks.

Stock of wheat at Sebastapool on October 1 about 1,785,000 bu.

Stock of wheat at Odessa on October 1 was about 4,200,000 bu.

Wheat in Private Elevators.

Minneapolis, Oct. 19.—The Northwestern Miller reports the stock in such houses 1,231,000 bu. The Market Record figures the stock of wheat in country elevators of Minnesota and the two Dakotas at 2,779,700 bu, 345,500 bu more than last week. This makes an aggregate northwestern stock 9,878,000 bu, an increase for the week of 1,056,100 bu. A year ago the total stock was 11,203,000 bu.

Comment.—It is a noteworthy fact that the above makes the present stock of wheat in all elevators (including Duluth) 1,415,000 bu more than last year.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 1,023,186 bu in excess of the corresponding Tuesday in 1889.

The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were 357,212 bu of wheat and flour to an aggregate of 420,000 bu. Exports of corn 6,625 bu.

English markets as reported herein are dull and later are reported lower.

Liverpool Quotations.

We have a courteous letter from the Western Union Telegraph authorities, saying that the resolutions of this exchange calling attention to the Liverpool quotations have stimulated the press to look into and improve the system. The question has been discussed by the different western exchanges, and we hope to see more intelligible work in that line ere long. We hope to make it clear to London and Liverpool dealers, that the wheat exported from the seaboard does not represent western No. 2 when the same is inspected out of our elevators.

On Ocean Passage.

Our table herein makes the quantity of flour and wheat on ocean passage to the United Kingdom 268,000 bus. more than at corresponding date in 1890, and to the continent 11,840,000 bus. more. Since Sept. 21st, the quantity on the ocean for the continent has decreased 4,425,000 bus.

The markets for wheat opned stronger and a shade higher to-day as much as anything perhaps upon the principle of a reaction from the decline of three days, and also, perhaps, that corn was higher and strong but about noon under reports of weak and lower English markets prices became weak and made a bad break. The situation looks weaker than it has since harvest. The market don't seem able to shoulder the continued heavy receipts, and needs a ukase very much, and one that comes from Russia, not from an American wheat pit.

Corn has been strong and higher all day, but lost a small part of the gain before the close.

In New York October wheat closed at $1.02 1-2, a loss of 1c; December at $1.05, a loss of 1c. October corn at 64c, a gain of 1c; November at 61 3-4c, a gain of 7-8c. October oats at 35c, a gain of 1-2c.

In Chicago December wheat closed at 94 5-8c, a loss of 1 3-4c. October corn at 53 1-2c, a gain of 1-2c; November at 48 3-4c, a gain of 3-8c. November oats at 28 1-8c, a gain of 5-8c.

In Toledo the market for futures has been active. The market was firm at opening and prices 1-4 to 1-2c better, a mess of it. The market squatted 2c in about half an hour, and closed at the lowest prices of the day. After 'change prices were 1-2c lower still.

On the call December sold at $1 00 and May at $1 06 1-4. After the call December sold at $1 00 1-8 to $1 00 1-2 and closed at 98 1-2c, a loss of 1 1-2c. May sold at $1 06 1-4 to $1 06 1-2 and closed at 98 1-4c, a loss of 11-2c. After 'change 50,000 bu. December sold at 98 1-4c.

Cash wheat opened firm and active and advanced 1-4c, but closed weak and demoralized, at a loss of 1 3-4c; No. 2 soft sold at 98 to 98 1-2c and closed at 96 1-2c; No. 3 soft at 95 to 94 1-2c and lower to sell; No. 4 soft at 90c; rejected No. 1 at 89 to 88c; No. 2 red and white at 97c.

Rye and wheat at 90c; No. 2 hard at 95c; No. 3 at 86 1-2c; No. 1 white at 96 1-2c; No. 2 white at 95c, closing lower to sell.

Trading in stocks this morning was even less active than during the same hours of yesterday. In fact the morning's business was smaller than for a long time past. In the two hours to noon the sales only aggregated 48,000 shares. Outside of New England, Burlington, Atchison, Louisville, Northern Pacific preferred, Adams, and a few others there was nothing done. The first prices were generally a small fraction higher than last evening's figures, and during the early dealings prices fluctuated irregularly. Toward 11 o'clock, however, a weak feeling developed, and prices at the end of the first hour were slightly below those of last night. In the hour to noon the market was dull and irregular. The only feature was a sharp rally in Adams Express, which recovered on several sales of small lots from 134 last evening to 145. The market at noon was dull but steady at opening prices. At this writing there is very little doing.

New York, Oct. 20.—Cotton steady; middling uplands 8 3-8c. Flour moderately active and in the buyers' favor; city mill extra, $5.25@5.35 for West Indies; Minn. extra, $3.35@5.65; superfine, $3.30@4.00; fine, $3.00@3.55. From Putnam county comes splendid campaign reports. The whole democratic ticket will touch the 2,000 majority point this year.

Griffin and Flickinger hope to win because the scratching and substitution will not be systematic, but both should be defeated and such is the general opinion in this city.

The N. Y. Telegram very neatly says: "Reciprocity is simply two nations' confession of judgment against their respective prohibitive tariffs.

Harry Dowling is gaining strength every day in his campaign for sheriff. He is a bright, active young man, popular with everybody and just the person for sheriff of Lucas county.

The full democratic registration is victory half eared, and more, because the man who registers will seldom fail to vote. See that every democrat registers this year. Do not leave any of them at home.

The chief worry of the administration at the present moment is to get Raum and Blair taken care of. It's difficult to place a man whom even the Chinese repudiates and as hard to handle one who is sheltered under the wing of a millionaire pension shark who has a mortgage on the whole business.

It is quite apparent that the Consolidated people have a hard row to hoe with the present city council, though, as plainly expressed by Alderman Everett, the Consolidated is now clearly right and public opinion is also on their side. It is not a question of the earning capacity of the two companies, it is one of rapid transit and public convenience.

The republicans will obtain no crumbs of comfort from the information that Senator Brice is in Ohio giving personal attention to politics.

The democratic meeting in Cincinnati last night was the climax of Gov. Campbell's popular campaign. The vast audience in Music Hall was numbered by thousands and on the stage were all the democrats who signed the famous document protesting against the re-nomination of Mr. Campbell. They are now enthusiastically for Campbell and victory. It was a regular harmony meeting and the prediction is now freely made in Cincinnati that Hamilton county will give Mr. Campbell a majority. The onward march of the candidate and the cause will keep Ohio in the democratic line.

A Baltimore gentleman traveling in England, determined to learn for himself the truth of the steamship subsidy we hear so much about on this side of the water from subsidy advocates. He went to English government officers for figures, which he sends to the Baltimore Sun, and here they are:

The whole payment made last year was $3,740,275; but three-fourths of this sum was paid for communication with the British colonies and dependencies, the remaining $908,500 having been paid for the transportation of the foreign mails. These payments are simply for work done and are neither bonuses nor subsidies to "encourage" shipbuilding or to stimulate trade.

Minister Pauncefot published a card over his own signature in the same paper a year ago in which he said explicitly, "not a dollar is paid in subsidies to any steamship company," and "the contract for the carrying of the mails is let to the lowest bidder." And yet, with this positive testimony before them, subsidy organs deliberately tell their readers that England's supremacy of the seas is the result of heavy subsidies to steamship lines. It is a bad cause that must be bolstered up with such absolute falsehood.

The Scripture "in the midst of life we are in death," was never more startlingly illustrated than in the sudden passing of Father Braire from our midst. With thoughts for his people in his heart and words of commendation for them on his lips, his soul slipped from its earthly tenement without time for a parting word or glance. It was well with him, he was prepared to go. A person who lives well, is ready to die whenever and wherever the summons overtakes him. The shock and the sorrow are for those who are bereft. Father Braire will be long missed and mourned not only by his own immediate people, but by those outside of his ministerial fold. He was a spirited, loyal American citizen. In all his addresses to his people his patriotism for his adopted country was his first and most eloquent utterance. The character of the man was shown at Memorial hall last evening, when some of those who were down for addresses failed to appear, he took the platform himself and spoke fervently and entertainingly. In to-day's Bee with the account of his death, appears also, the report of his last words in public. Verily though dead he yet speaketh.

Here is the table of wage increase in England, between the years of 1840 and 1883, taken from official statistics and published by the Chicago Herald in answer to a challenge:

Occupation.	Increase, per cent.
Carpenters	42
Bricklayers	50
Masons	24
Miners	50
Pattern weavers	55
Wool scourers	30
Spinners	20
Weavers	150
Warpers	58
Winders and reelers	83
Spinners (children)	160

And while wages have doubled during these years the cost of living has been materially reduced and the national wealth multiplied a thousand fold. Facts are stubborn things.

They talk about the tin-plate tax. Suppose we don't make a pound of tin-plate. The duty on it has been increased from one cent to two and two-tenths cents, but you're not paying a cent more for your tin than you did before. The old tariff on tin brought seven millions into the treasury. The new one will bring in sixteen millions. Supposing we continue to import it all. We've a clear gain of nine millions and your tin isn't costing you a cent more.—McKinley to Ohio Farmers.

According to this doctrine the United States has only to put exorbitant duties on articles of foreign manufacture, open the treasury doors and the millions will flow into it, while the people of the country revel in low prices and high wages, chuckling to themselves how the countries of the world are paying taxes to support their government! Beautiful logic to offer intelligent Ohio farmers who want consistent argument and actual information. And if this is good policy for the United States, why don't all other countries do so too? And then what a jolly good time everybody would have! Great political economist is candidate McKinley.

The anxiety the average candidate shows to write himself down "a farmer" at some period of his history is amusing if not disgusting to sensible people. This little device to capture votes is too gauzy and is a gratuitous insult to agricultural communities, assuming that they are so stupid and ignorant that no matter how sharky and scheming a man may be, or what is his present-day record, if he was ever a farmer, even a "real estate dealer," a forecloser of mortgages on other men's farms and cultivated an onion bed in his back yard—that to parade these facts disguised to suit circumstances will win the farmer's ballot. It is presuming quite too much. The farmers have been blind but they are not fools. These reflections are suggested by the local claim that John Rorick, of Fulton county, republican candidate for senator, was, or is, a farmer. When he lived in Michigan, where he was raised, he wasn't much of a tiller of the soil, and if he now owns large stretches of God's acres it is because his mortgage plan has put lots of money in his pockets to be salted down in farms. A farmer!

TEXTS FROM AN OFFICIAL DOCUMENT.

The struggle of the Forest Commission to reserve and preserve the Adriondack forest has attracted general attention. This commission has just issued its fifth annual report, accompanied by a map which shows the original Adriondack forest, and within this area the boundaries of the proposed park. One item from this report might well command attention from those interested in the subject (and who are not) in the fire-scourged states of the north and northwest. In these great woods of New York state very little damage is done by fires, and the reason given for this is the fact that rules concerning fires are everywhere posted and are generally observed. Reports from county firewardens are published and a remarkable decrease is shown in nearly every instance. No person can light a fire without giving notice and obtaining permission of the nearest town warden, whose duty is not that of forester, but simply to exercise watchfulness and care in the one particular.

The laws of the state establish this forest commission and the schedule of fines for offenses is posted with the rules of the commission: Five dollars for destroying a notice and not less than fifty dollars or more than five hundred, or imprisonment for not less than thirty days or more than six months; the offender shall also be liable for damages caused by fires that are the result of wilful lawbreaking or carelessness in letting the fire escape his premises. And like fines are enacted for malicious injury to forest trees. The names and address of the town and county firewardens and foresters are printed for the sixteen counties embraced in the forest district.

The laws relative to the duties and obligations of railway companies might well be studied by legislators in the fire-smitten states. These are obliged to remove dry grass and all combustible material from either side their tracks for a certain distance, to use spark arresters, not to deposit ashes anywhere in the vicinity of woodlands, to employ extra trackmen in times of drouth and danger and to instruct trainmen to be watchful and to immediately report fires. The penalty for neglect to conform with the law in every particular is a fine of one hundred dollars for each offense. In furtherance of obedience, rules and fines are everywhere posted and the legislature makes suitable appropriations for the purpose of carrying out the act and enforcing the laws.

Another subject is brought to the mind of the thoughtful reader as he glances through the pages of this interesting official document. The effort of the commission to have the state legislature establish a park in the Adriondack wilderness, presented to the law-makers one year ago last January, stirred up two sets of stubborn opponents; one of these was, naturally, the owners of timber lands and the other the owners of "private preserves," the pleasure grounds of wealthy men. Since the park agitation was started these greedy Croesuses have been active in gaining new domain and extending that already held. Embraced within the proposed park area are over 2,300,000 acres. Of this territory 300,073 acres are occupied by the "private preserves" mentioned, and their "keep off the grass," "don't shoot on these premises," "don't fish in these waters," and other barbed wire provisions, remind one of the old world injustice that we all cry out against. The spirit is the same and would be if exhibited and felt in the same manner if the land in the United States was measured by hundreds or thousands of acres, instead of hundreds of millions.

The Duke of Hamilton, who owns the beautiful island of Arran, and whose hunting and pleasure grounds consist of thousands of acres, is not more selfish or aristocratic in his possession, which fell to him in line from Marie Stuart's reign. It is nothing to him that Irish peasants, almost within stone's throw, are dying of slow starvation in their efforts to live by cultivating little patches of ground that wouldn't make an American a city garden, paying three-quarters of the little they may scratch together for rent for the same; he is the grandson of an earl and the island of Arran is his for his guests, his family, his game and his dogs. It yields him a fine income, too. He is said to be a fair landlord, only he won't let his peasants build for themselves new houses because he doesn't want his pleasure island disfigured, and then they would be likely to live in the cabins he provides and rent the others for speculation and they must not be encouraged in such foolishness.

To look on the beautiful island of Arran and then on the poor little potato patches of the Irish peasant makes the blood of an American boil with indignation; but he can come home to America and find the same spirit, less conspicuous in its influence, only because there is more land.

Physicians agree that climatic healing in the air of the Adriondacks is equal to that of Colorado, but the republican nobility must have deer parks nd hunting grounds if the poor die of consumption which the balsamic airs they monopolize might cure.

Perhaps the states of the Union would better make land laws and forestry laws a little ahead of the pressing necessity for them. Indeed, the pressing necessity for protection to woodlands is already here and the other is surely threatened, though it may be longer coming.

CAN THE IRISHMEN UNITE

John Dillon the Most Available Man

To Lead the Two Factions in the Future.

His Speech Eulogizing Parnell Has Softened the Feeling of the Anti-McCarthyites Against Him.

London, Oct. 20.—John Dillon's speech eulogizing Parnell has considerably softened the feelings of the Parnellites toward him, especially as it was coupled with a repudiation of the attacks in the Dublin Catholic on Parnell's memory.

There is now believed to be a possibility of a reconciliation under Dillon.

No one doubts the truth of Dillon's statement that he loved Parnell, and there is only one speech of Dillon's on record in which he antagonized Parnell strongly, and that was on the subject of the Paris fund, and delivered a few days before Parnell's death.

Before going to jail Dillon had been careful to keep a moderate course. He hoped that dissension would come to an end before his release. Upon being liberated he threw his lot in with the McCarthyites but he never used personally abusive terms regarding Parnell, and the utmost charged against him by the Parnellites is that when an offensive term was used in his presence he failed to rebuke it.

There is no proof that he heard it, and if he did he thought it best to ignore it.

Dillon is undoubtedly considered by the tories the strongest man of the two factions, and the most positive and commanding character.

BOILER EXPLOSION.

Three Men Blown to Pieces and Much Damage Caused.

Pottsville, Pa., Oct. 20.—At 6:45 o'clock last evening a terrible accident happened at Tucker's watch box, a short distance below St. Clair, in which three men were killed and one was fatally injured.

Mountain engine No. 955 on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad was drawing a train of empty cars up the grade, when the boiler exploded, completely demolishing the engine, tearing up the tracks and doing great damage to telegraph lines and surrounding property.

The names of the killed are: Charles Warnicker, brakeman, of St. Clair; Harry Wagner, engineer, of Port Carbon; Mahlon Keese, fireman, of St. Clair. Charles Bauer, brakeman, of St. Clair, is fatally injured. The men were in the engine cab when the explosion took place. No cause is assigned for the explosion, the engine being just out of the shop.

LEASED THE SHORT LINE.

Important Railroad Action Taken at Columbus.

Columbus, Oct. 20.—At the annual meeting of the Columbus, Shawnee & Hocking Railroad company the most important action was with reference to leasing an outlet to Lake Erie for the coal traffic of the road which extends from Columbus into the eastern and southeastern Ohio coal fields.

The directors were authorized to perfect arrangements for leasing the Sandusky & Columbus, Lake Erie & Southern Short Line now in process of construction from Sandusky south by direct line to Columbus.

The new route will be, when completed, the shortest and most direct between central Ohio and the great lakes.

The following board of directors was elected: P. W. Huntington, Columbus, president; F. J. Picard, Columbus, vice president and general manager; W. E. Guerin, Columbus, secretary and general solicitor; H. B. Turney, Columbus, treasurer; Chase Andrews, Zanesville; D. B. Hatch and H. W. Putnam, New York; D. S. Gray, Charles Parrott, G. C. Hoover and Samuel Huston, Columbus.

PARDON GRANTED.

Columbus, Oct. 20.—Gov. Campbell this morning granted a pardon to Chas. Wagner, sent to the Ohio penitentiary from Middleton, Butler county, for manslaughter, October, 1889, to serve five years. His pardon was petitioned for by prominent citizens of Butler county, and by the prosecuting attorney, as he has a wife and five children dependent on him for support. Warden Dyer certifies that Wagner has been a first class prisoner since his incarceration.

CAUGHT BY A BELT AND KILLED

Wellsville, Oct. 20.—James McFlynn, a workman at the Irondale planing mill, was accidentally caught by a belt and was thrown against a heavy piece of timber and received injuries from which he died an hour later.

NEW CORPORATIONS.

Columbus, Oct. 20.—The following articles of incorporation were filed in the office of the secretary of state to-day: The Germania Fire company, Portsmouth; The Mutual Home and Savings association, South Charleston, capital stock $250,000; The Lancaster Medical company, Lancaster, capital $5,000.

PARNELL'S SUCCESSOR.

London, Oct. 19.—Mr. William Redmond has been elected as the Parnellite candidate for the parliamentary seat for Cork made vacant by the death of Mr. Parnell.

Mr. Fassett and the Tiger.

Mr. Fassett continues to drag the Tiger over the state by the tail in a manner which threatens danger to the beast's caudal appendage. But the tail is not the vital part of the tiger, we understand. —New York Advertiser.

The Thing to Do.

Mr. Campbell turns into the "home stretch" in good shape. The race seems to be his. Now let us make his majority a good one.—Zanesville Signal.

WHAT WILL CHINA SAY?

A Question of Great Importance Just Now.

The Riots and the Consequences Discussed

The Powers Have Made a Demand on the Rulers of the Flowery Kingdom and the Answer Is Eagerly Awaited.

Washington, Oct. 20.—On the assumption that "no news is good news," the state and navy departments are resting easy about the Chinese situation. The officials are eager to get possession of every possible piece of information, however, and show in a praiseworthy manner that they are fully alive to the importance of the situation in China.

The next item of interest that is likely to reach the state department will in all probability be the answer from the Chinese government to the united demand on the part of foreign ministers for protection and reparation. The state department officials do not hazard a guess as to the probable character of this answer.

If it is true, as some of the dispatches have indicated, that the riots and outrages at Ichang were tacitly countenanced by the Chinese government officials, it is held by some that the answer from the imperial court at Pekin may be startlingly independent. Official and private dispatches seem to agree as to the character of the Ichang riots and the action of the soldiery and the inaction of the commanding officers and those in authority.

Even when the British consulate was openly attacked and burned not a word was uttered by the Chinese officers to stay the riot. This phase of the affair is considered very serious here. It is taken that the outrages were perpetrated with the sanction, if not by the orders, of the officers of the Chinese forces.

Another view, which is also borne out by recent dispatches from Shanghai, is held by many of our government officials, and that is that the soldiers present at the riots, and who are said to have assisted in the depredations, were Hunan men, who have a particular hatred of foreigners.

The regular government soldiers who were in the bands dared not interfere with the Hunanese troops. Such action, it is claimed, would have precipitated a civil war.

The unstable condition of affairs where a government does not interfere with the actions of her subjects in order to protect foreign life and property, it is feared, does not augur well for a satisfactory answer to the demands to which the United States was a party.

If the Chinese government was powerless to stop a riot in which her own troops were concerned will she have the backbone to stand up and pay the damages claimed by the hated foreigners, and thus put the official seal of disapproval upon her soldiers' actions?

This is a question that diplomats acknowledge must enter largely into any speculation as to what course the Chinese government will pursue.

In other words, will China risk a whipping from England, Germany, France and the United States in order to avoid an internal revolution or will she make her peace with these outside nations and run her chance with the Hunanese and dissatisfied elements within her borders?

While Li Hung Chang is revolving this question in his shrewd, crafty mind, the foreign powers are not idle by any means. They are disposed to show the Celestial statesman that the request for reparation is not an idle one, and although Ichang, where the outrages were committed, is the better part of a thousand miles from the sea coast, retribution for damages done in that retired locality can be worked at Shanghai, one of the principal seaports of the kingdom; and not only at Shanghai, but at every point of importance from Korea down to Tonquin.

The Yellow sea is now filled with war vessels from every important nation on the globe and more are coming. Germany has given up dallying with her old friend, from whom she expected great favors, and has several vessels ready to enforce her demands.

In addition to her fleet already in China waters France has on the way thither two men-of-war. England has her 16 vessels within call, while the United States is prepared to make a semi-respectable showing—a showing at least in proportion to the amount of damages she is entitled to compared with those claimed by other foreign nations.

The United States has now on the Asiatic stations more than double the naval force she had two months ago. The force has been augmented by three ships of better class than those which have been lying Chinese waters for the last few years.

The exact disposition of these vessels does not seem to be known at the navy department. Much is left to the discretion of Admiral Belknap, who is in charge of the fleet.

His headquarters at Yokohoma, Japan, are within comparatively easy reach of the important points on the Chinese coast, both north and south. He has under his command the Charleston, recently made his flagship; the Palos, the Alliance, the Alert and the Monocacy, with the Marion on her way to Yokohoma and perhaps now under immediate orders of the admiral.

Most of these vessels are within the Chinese sea and can reach any port where their presence is deemed necessary. The Monocacy was drydocked at Yokohama immediately on the arrival of the Charleston, and it is thought at the navy department that she is now on her way to Shanghai to join the remainder of the fleet.

While our fleet is not very large—not as large as either the state or navy department desires—yet it is considered that it will serve our purpose. It is evident that the intention of the foreign powers is to make a display that will overawe the riotously inclined Chinese soldiers.

This demonstration, it is hinted, may be made with the quiet assistance of the central government in China. In this display the small vessels of the United States may prove very effective in entering waters that larger ship dare not venture in.

The representatives of the Flowery Kingdom in this city retain their customary placidity of countenance when the situation in China is broached. They have no advices that would indicate a state of affairs that cannot be amicably adjusted.

The Chinese minister some months ago assured the state department that precautions would be taken to guard he iterests and lives of Americans and while he has not been commissioned to guarantee reparation for damage already done, the inference is that he will use his office in sustaining any reasonable dmands that we may make.

Innocent George William.

The estimable Mr. Curtis asks, in Harper's Weekly: "Are we (the mugwumps) to lose temperance reform, or ballot reform, or civil-service reform in the state merely because to vote for them by supporting one party will injure the prestige of the other party which favors tariff reform?" To "lose" temperance reform by voting in the party of Shed Shook!—to "lose" ballot reform by placing in power the party of Quay and Dudley!—to "lose" civil-service reform by setting up Boss Platt and indorsing Van Cott and Hendricks! Really, Mr. Curtis, you are too innocent for this wicked world. You ought to waft yourself right away to heaven.—New York World.

THE TOLEDO ASYLUM.

The Opinion of One of the Trustees of the Institution.

To the Editor:—The republican press of Toledo being constantly engaged in scurrilous and vicious attacks on the present management of the Toledo Asylum for Insane, I desire to lay the exact truth before the good people of Toledo, to show whether they, "the press," are justified in these attacks.

Every visitor to the asylum must and will give evidence of the fact, that the asylum is in the most scrupulous state of cleanliness, that there are no odors of any kind, that the physicial condition of the unfortunates is most excellent, that their bodies are clean and well nourished, their clothing as good as can be expected, and their health on an average better than for years. The average rate of cures has not diminished.

The discipline of the staff had been somewhat ruptured on account of the open and rebellious actions of some of the older employes. Their discharge has however bettered this, their places having been filled by old employes of this institution, who thoroughly understand their duties, and are not rewarded simply because of their political past. The staff of physicians is the best this institution has ever had, and no one can gain say this who knows aught about it.

The financial interests of this asylum are in honest and capable hands, and the books will show this. The expenses for the month of Oct., 1891, were less than in Oct., 1890, by nearly $2,600—surely a good showing. No breath of suspicion has ever been found against our financial officer, Mr. Cahill, and Dr. Tupper's honesty has never been questioned. Their pride is in the reduction of expenses, especially in the administration building, where formerly thousands had been used.

As far as visitors are concerned, the same courteous treatment will be shown them as heretofore, and if they will take the trouble to examine, will find all that I have stated to be the unbiased truth.

FEARFUL STORMS ABROAD

They Came as Foster Predicted They Would.

The Irish Sea Lashed Into a Foaming Fury.

Many Vessels in Distress—High Water is Flooding the Land—General News from the Afflicted Country.

London, Oct. 20.—There seems to be no end to the terribly severe weather which has prevailed almost without interruption for about a week. No sooner does the wind go down for a few hours than the report is spread that the bad weather has ceased. But people have hardly commenced to congratulate themselves over this aspect of affairs than the sky again becomes of a leaden color and the fury of the wind is again let loose.

During the past 48 hours the Irish sea has been most severely storm swept. The Dublin mail packet from Holyhead arrived at Kingstown, the landing place for Dublin, five hours late. She reports that after being out two hours a tremendous heavy sea smashed several of the paddles of her weather side wheel. Consequently the packet had to heave to for repairs and hardly had the paddles been repaired when another heavy sea carried away the steering wheel and a portion of the bridge The passengers upon arrival at Kingstown declared that they had passed through a really terrible experience.

The hurricane which has prevailed on the west coast of Ireland for several days past is pronounced to be the worst storm ever known in that part of the country for 20 years The river Shannon has overflowed its banks and has submerged large quantities of land in its vicinity, drowning a considerable quantity of cattle and sheep and destroying several houses and many barns and other such buildings.

To add to the long list of vessels which have left their ribs on these coasts during the recent storm is a French brig which was wrecked off St. Catherine point. Five men of the brig's crew were drowned.

A coasting schooner was also stranded at about the same point.

The gale has also been raging with unusual fierceness about Queenstown and its vicinity. About thirty crafts, large and small, mostly fishing smacks and small coasters, have been driven ashore in that vicinity. At Youghal the sea has been so heavy, and the water has been driven so far up by the wind that many parts of the town are flooded by the sea which have swept into the streets. Many sheep and cattle have been drowned along the course of the Black Water river.

Dispatches from Holyhead state that 200 vessels, many of them much damaged, have sought refuge at that port from the storm. The gravest apprehensions are felt by the inhabitants of Sandgate, a small town on the English channel, situated about two miles from Folkestone, in Kent. The storms have caused a most abnormal high tide there, and this combined with the hurricane which is blowing there is destroying the sea walls. Many houses situated near the shore have already been washed over by the angry waters, and the high road leading to Hythe and Folkestone is submerged and destroyed in many places

The river Thames at Windsor, Eaton and other places is overflowing its banks into many houses. Similar reports are reaching this city from many other parts of England, Ireland and Scotland. At Maryport, Cumberland, on the Irish Sea, a thriving shipbuilding place, though the harbor dries at low water at some places about the town, the water is now four feet deep and is causing an enormous amount of damage, particularly at the stores and warehouses unlucky enough to be inundated.

The river Shannon has burst its banks in county Limerick, inundating large tracts of land. The reclamation works near Ennis, in county Clare, which recently cost the government $600,000, are badly damaged. Many villages in the Trent valley are submerged. The rivers Usk, Ebbw, Runnye andOtway have overflowed their banks. Many thousand acres of land are covered with water and the roads are impassible. Large numbers of buildings weakened by the floods have collapsed, and the loss of live stock is very great. The Parrot river has overflowed its banks. Between Bridgewater and Longport the country is for many miles like a sea. Hundreds of cattle have been drowned and many houses are submerged.

Inscription for Carnegie's Flag.

Andrew Carnegie is to build the world's fair tower at Chicago, which will be the highest in the world and fly the American flag at the height of 1,120 feet. The flag should bear this inscription as a protest in the face of all nations: "This tower is built by a beneficiary of the McKinley high protection tariff, who builds castles on the Scottish hill and free libraries in foreign cities by starving out American laborers and filling their places by imported Huns, who cannot read, write or speak the English language."—Canton News-Democrat.

The Bee is Solid.

The Toledo Bee has just moved into a five story new building built expressly for the "Bee" to buzz in. The Bee is one of the best democratic papers on our exchange list and we are glad to learn of its permanent location in a good solid building built upon rock. We hope to see Lucas county go democratic in November.—Kent News.

SURRENDER OF YORKTOWN.

French Catholics Celebrate the 110th Anniversary.

An Interesting Meeting Participated in by a Large Assemblage.

Last evening at Memorial hall the French Catholics of the city, under the auspices of St. Joseph's society of St. Joseph's church, celebrated in a becoming manner the one hundred and tenth anniversary of the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown. The hall was crowded and the program was carried out admirably.

The failure of Dr. Whiteford and Mr. Pilliod, the two speakers of the evening, to appear was somewhat of a disappointment, but Father Braire came bravely to the rescue and delivered an able address. It was eloquent, earnest and instructive.

The French people, he said, were proud of their mother country and proud of the record she had made in the history of the world; but they were prouder still of America, proud of her free institutions, of the flag which had become the symbol and emblem of liberty the world over. Catholic French missionaries were the first to plant the cross of Christianity and the flag of civilization in the barbaric wildernesses of the great northwest. Thousands of cities, towns and streams and islands along the great chain of lakes still echoed the name and fame of these pioneers. Catholic France rallied to the side of truth and justice in the war of the revolution, and Catholic blood flowed freely to secure the independence of which all were proud. In the war of the rebellion there was not a battlefield from the St. Lawrence to the Savannah that Catholic blood had not been poured forth as an offering and tribute to liberty —for the preservation of the union and the honor of the stars and stripes. And yet there were people who said Catholics had no rights in this country, that they were opposed to free institutions and to the flag. History repudiated the lie. The reverend gentleman paid glowing tribute to Lafayette and Roschambeau, and closed an eloquent address by telling his auditors to remember they were Americans first and last.

Mr. Joseph Duprey, president of St. Joseph's society, followed in a lengthy and able address in French, which was well received.

A quartet from St. Joseph's church choir, Edward Goulet, Alfred Robert, Henry St. Leger and Louis Leroux, sang some well rendered selections during the intermission.

The ladies of St. Joseph's parish assisted not a little in making the entertainment the success it was. There were refreshment booths that caught the young people and booths of ornamental and useful fancy work that coaxed the dimes from the pockets of the older visitors.

The ice cream department was presided over by Miss Ada Manville, who had the following able corps of assistants: Misses Katie Short, Louise DeShetler, Nellie Blanchard, Celia Duval, Artie Poinier, Julia Manville, Victoria Robarge, Rosie Ricard, Lida Duval.

Confectionery—Misses Goulet, Libbie Ranger and Abbie Banchaine.

Fancy work booth—Mesdames Manville, Robarge and Ricard.

The celebration was a great success, and Father Braire and the society are to be congratulated.

CLUB AND SOCIAL.

The opening meeting of the Toledo Society of Economic Inquiry is to-morrow evening in the Steadman business college, entrance on Adams street. As its name suggests, this society is for the full and free discussion of the economic and sociological questions of the day. All persons interested in such discussions are welcome at any meeting. A brief paper is read upon some selected topic at each meeting, after which discussion is open to all. To-morrow evening Rev. H. M. Bacon, D. D., reads the opening paper. Topic: Christian Socialism.

The regular meeting of the Women's Colloquial club, on Friday afternoon next, at the Law kindergarten rooms, Central Congregational church, will be opened by a paper from Mrs. Judge Harmon.

The Isabella reading circle met this afternoon with Mrs. Sara J. Foley, 626 Lagrange street, and the talk was upon a paper written and read by Miss Mary Law, upon the last voyage, persecution and death of Columbus. A call has been made upon Mrs. R. L. Segur, the president of the Isabella association, to organize an evening study club, and this will be done in the near future.

RECEPTION AT TRINITY

To Bishop Atwill and other Distinguished Visitors.

To-morrow Rev. Dr. Atwill, formerly of Toledo, Rev. Dr. Rainsford, of New York, and other distinguished visitors will be entertained at a reception and lunch at the parlors of Trinity church.

Delegations from New York, Cleveland and Detroit, enroute to the convention of St. Andrew's Brotherhood, which meets at St. Louis this week, will stop off at Toledo for a brief visit.

Rev. Mr. Scaddings and the good people of Trinity are making arrangements to entertain the visitors right royally. The members of the congregation will be glad to meet and greet their old pastor, Bishop Atwill.

EPILEPTIC FITS CURED.

A Specific Discovered at Last.

For years a cure for Epilepsy, St. Vitus Dance Hysteria, and other fits has been sought. It is now conceded that the long-needed remedy has been found in Dr. Greene's Nervura, which has, by curing thousands of cases, proved that it is an absolute specific for these terrible nervous complaints. Purely vegetable and harmless, sold by druggists, $1.00.

"My son had been troubled with fits for the past ten years. He has had as many as ten in one day. Before I had used one bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura I could see a marked improvement in his nervous system. The fits did not occur so often and were not so severe, and his general health seemed better. I continued the Nervura and it effected a permanent cure.

MRS. W. O. HITCHCOCK,
85 Maple St., Jersey City, N. J."

"My son has been troubled with epilepsy, loss of appetite and had no ambition to do anything. He took Dr. Greene's Nervura. It made him a new boy. The fits have left him; his whole system is built up anew, and he is enjoying perfect health. It is the best medicine I ever used, and has no equal.

MR. W. SCHUM,
1072 First Ave., New York City."

"My boy was very nervous and had four or five fits every day. After using Dr. Greene's medicine three weeks he began to get well, and has had no fits since. Ten doctors gave him up as incurable. The doctors and my neighbors can hardly believe their eyes when they see my boy all strong and well.

MRS. EMMA SWEENEY,

The principle used is that of so training the gun as to cause the object to be fired at to be reflected on a screen at the rear of the gun.

Probably the largest newspaper ever published in this country was The Illuminated Quadruple Constellation, New York, July 4, 1859. It was a 28,00 edition and sold at 50 cents a copy. The size of this sheet was 70x100 inches, or almost 49 square feet, 8 pages, 13 columns to the page, or a total of 104 columns, each 48 inches in length.

The second day's registration in New York was 80,092, bringing the total for the two days up to 150,172, as against 140,808 for the first two days last year, but still considerably below the registration of 1888 for the same time, which was 187,491. The total registration in Brooklyn for the two days foot up 107,684, including the name of Secretary Tracy.

Rudolph Virchow, the great German pthologist, was 70 years old a few days ago and Europe's scientists, statesmen, and physicians joined in doing him honor. Prof. Virchow is the originator of the cell-growth theory of disease, the adoption of which, says a competent writer, is "the most important step in pathology" of the period, as it has "little less than revolutionized pathological study."

The house of a Moslem is always divided into two separate parts, the haaremlik and the selamlik. If the husband gives a dinner he can invite only gentlemen, and the guests can never intrude into the haaremlik. If the wife gives a reception no gentlemen are admitted to disturb the harmony. In all mosques, theaters, horse cars, ferries, etc., special places are provided for women.

An interesting incident showing at how great a distance a conversation can be carried on is related by Lieutenant Foster of the third Parry Artic expedition, in which he says that he conversed with a man across the harbor of Port Bowers, a mile and a quarter away, and it has also been asserted on good authority that at Gibraltar the human voice has been distinctly heard at a distance of ten miles.

Two centuries ago the traveler in Japan, had such been allowed, would have seen in public places the following declaration in Chinese characters: "As long as the sun shall warm the earth, let no Christian be so bold as to come to Japan; and let all know that the King of Spain himself, or the Christian's God, or the Great God of all, if He violates this command, shall pay for it with his head."

SENT BACK

Were Numerous Matters from Board of Aldermen.

Annexation Referred—Goose Point Dredging Delayed—The Street Railway War Continues—Other Business.

All members were present at the meeting of the board of aldermen last evening and a long schedule of business was further lengthened out by much talk. In the absence of City Clerk Durian, his deputy, James Faskins, acted as clerk of the meeting. During the meeting the railway fight was kept up and the annexation ordinance was referred back to the committee.

Mr. Everett introduced a resolution authorizing the health officer to have sewers flushed out when it is necessary for sanitary purposes.

A petition for an abatement of an assessment, presented by Mr. Peiter, was referred to the judiciary committee.

The report of the ways and means committee meeting was accepted and filed. The committee held a meeting last evening to sell Summit street and Floyd street bonds, but as usual, there were no bids.

From the street committee ordinances were passed to turnpike St. Louis street, from Starr avenue to French street to turnpike Lane avenue; to provide for cleaning Fulton street; to vacate part of Griffin street from Western avenue to Ann street; to vacate the end of Superior street at Galena street, and to establish the grade of Ravine alley.

Resolutions were adopted to widen and straighten Scottwood avenue; directing the clerk to advertise the petition for vacating part of Miller street, and directing the street commissioner to fill Ravine alley.

The ordinance making the special electric light assessments was passed as prepared by the engineer, and in this connection a resolution was passed directing the engineer to make abatements of the assessments on corner lots so that the tax on these lots shall not be in excess of that on adjoining lots facing only on one street.

A resolution providing for the appointment of an electric light inspector was referred to the gas committee.

The applications and bonds of Charles Stein and J. L. Burns as sewer builders were approved.

A resolution for a new sidewalk on the south side of Erie street from Galena to Chicago street was referred back to the committee.

Resolutions were adopted for new sidewalks on Hicks street, Newton avenue, Daniels avenue, Ontario street, Michigan street and Page street.

Street Railways.

Mr. Huberich made a motion to take from the committee the amendment to the street railway ordinance, which is to allow the Consolidated to put up another trolley wire in the streets and he backed his motion with a talk of some length, stating that in his opinion this action by the council would facilitate the work of the conference committee. This amendment had been laid over by the committee at its meeting last Thursday.

This motion carried and when the amendment came before the board it elicited considerable debate.

Mr. Potter opposed it and moved to reconsider the motion whereby it was taken from the committee. The motion was lost by a vote of 7 to 2.

Mr. Everett favored the amendment and especially urged for its passage the reason that circuit court had found it practical to place two trolley wires in the street.

Several other members spoke for and against the ordinance, but when it came to passage the amendment was lost by a vote of 5 to 4.

Mr. Potter objected to the councilmen adding another member to the street railway conference committee, making it stand four councilmen and three aldermen. The amendment was concurred in, however, Mr. Potter alone voting against it.

The new general street railway ordinance, which came up for passage under the head of unfinished business, was again laid over for two weeks.

The ordinance granting the Robison company the right to construct an extension along Mulberry street, Spring street and Stickney avenue was passed at last, after having been tossed back and forth between the committee and the board for several months.

Dredging and Annexation.

The board refused to confirm the contract with James Rooney for dredging Goose Point bar for the reason that there is no money to pay for the work. The vote was 6 to 3.

The ordinance to annex Auburndale and West Toledo was referred back to the committee, on motion of Mr. Everett, who stated that some interested parties wished to be heard.

The resolution to employ two assistants for the city natural gas inspector was amended to employ only one.

Other business from the lower board was passed.

GAS TRUSTEES' MEETING.

Brief Business Session Last Evening—Awarding More Contracts.

Messrs. Parsons, Jones and Greene were the only members of the board of gas trustees present at the meeting last evening. Little outside of the regular routine grind was trasacted. The work of making contracts and connections goes speedily on.

The contracts with Parks, Foster & Co. and Keller Bros. to make connections were read and ordered executed. The contract with Kerlin Bros. for furnishing and laying pipes in certain streets and was ordered signed when a proper bond was furnished. Kerlin Bros. were also given a contract for making connections in districts 5 and 9.

A contract with John McIntyre for a number of wells was ordered executed.

Richard Marquette applied for a plumber's license and the petition was referred to the manager.

Lines were ordered laid on the following streets:

Seventeenth, Monroe to Washington.
Cherry, Beacon to Scott.
Lorlie, on Bancroft.
Glen, Western avenue to Bond.
John street, Franklin to Vermont.
Buffalo, 100 feet south.

The manager reported that the following factories had been notified to use meters: Bechtol, Carney & Co.; Conant Bros.; Central Chandelier Co.; Crane Bros.; Gendron Iron Wheel Co.; C. A. King & Co.; Maumee Rolling Mills; Chas. Meyer; J. R. Moorman & Co.; L. H. Meinert; F. N. Quale; R. Reeves; Roth & Friedman; J. N. Ricard; Smith Bride Co.; Smead's foundry; Stem & Mason; Toledo Electric St. R. R. Co.; Toledo Electric Co.; Toledo Machine & Tool Co.; A. Thiede & Co.; L. S. Baking Co.; Toledo Block Works; Toledo Carriage Woodwork Co.; Toledo Foundry & Machine Co.; Toledo Metal Wheel Co., and the Woolson Spice Co.

The payroll, amounting to $1,055 was ordered paid.

Lines were ordered laid as follows under the Kerlin contract:

Eight-inch line on Orange, Erie to Ostrich lane.
Six-inch, Western avenue, Field to Sumner.
Three-inch, Western avenue, south side Field to Sumner.
Four-inch, Dix, Crittenden to Broadway.
Six-inch, South Oak, Nevada to Williams.
Six-inch, Franklin avenue, Bancroft to Prescott.
Six-inch, Prescott, Franklin avenue to alley.

HILL IN THE SOUTH.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 20.—Gov. Hill and party were given a big reception here last night, where they stopped en route to Atlanta.

WALKS AND TALKS.

"Lucas county needs a new courthouse, and needs it very bad," said Mr. Franz, landlord of the Hamilton, as he gazed about the interior of the probate office, the other day. "And we should have one by all means. These records are too valuable and of too much consequence to be left in this old fire-trap to be destroyed by fire. Why, they never could be saved if fire should break out in daytime, when everybody is around, much less at night. Besides that, the old building is an eyesore to Toledo, and greatly mars the prospects of this beautiful park. I don't see why that $60,000 expended in the construction of an armory building was not used to build a new court house. This is needed, while an armory is not."

"I wonder if they would hang a man in Georgia for stealing a bicycle," remarked County Clerk Bronson to a Bee. "That is the fate of a horse thief in that state. Bicycle stealing seems to have taken the place of horse stealing in this section of the country. This term of criminal court we have two men indicted for stealing one horse, and five men indicted for stealing six bicycles. One man stole two machines. It is remarkable how this misdemeanor has increased within the last three years. Before that you seldom heard of a bicycle being stolen, and never a case reached the grand jury. I suppose it is due to the advent of the safety into popularity. It is small, and most any one can ride it. They are left carelessly in convenient localities, and the consequence is the temptation is too strong to be resisted."

"I have never been sick in a bed a day in my life," remarked John Gunckel to a Bee the other day, "and yet I have all the aches and pains the average human being is heir to. When I have a touch of rheumatism or feel bad from any other cause, I get out into the air and exercise. I used to get out and take a long walk when I didn't feel just right, and invariably when I returned the aches and pains were gone. It is this desire for exercise that accounts for my fishing trips to Ten Mile creek. When I feel bad or sick, I gather up some fishing tackle and hie me to the home of the finny tribe, and soon forget pain and trouble in the fascinating sport."

George Beers, a hustling young business man of Van Wert, was in the city the other day. In conversation with a Bee he said: 'Van Wert is prospering as she never prospered before, and her business men are enjoying the same blessing. We are surrounded by as fine agricultural country as lies out doors, and the crops are always big, but this year are greater than ever before. We also have natural gas, and I am afraid this most convenient improvement is going to cause a municipal eruption. The gas company is endeavoring to raise the price of gas, the consumers are raising an objection and there the trouble begins. The row has been carried into the city council and there is no telling what will become of it. It will be safe to say, however, that the town will not be benefited in any measure by the contention."

"The effects of the new system of selecting jurymen for the common pleas court, which is done by a jury commission, is apparent already," remarked Charley Prue, deputy county clerk, to a Bee. "As was expected, the jury commissioners selected business men, in a majority of cases, who, as everybody knows, are the best jurymen when they can be induced to serve. There have been about one hundred names drawn from the box, and I don't believe we have over two full panels yet. Every other man drawn comes in with some excuse to avoid the service, yet if some of these same business men have a case in court and it goes against them, ten to one they will blame it on the ignorance of the jury. For this reason we have the much talked of professional juror, and he will exist and set on the jury just as long as business men refuse to serve."

"We are putting forth every effort that lies within our power to give our patrons good service," said Manager Tonkins of the Northwestern Natural Gas company to a Bee. "We are feeling our way in the Sandusky field, and endeavoring with as much dispatch as possible to locate the gas territory. We are drilling several wells and have several in that are making a fair showing, but the supply is everything but satisfactory, for the reason that the field is a new one and the durability of the territory is yet a conundrum."

CAMPBELL IN CLERMONT.

A Rousing Democratic Gathering.

People Stand for Hours in the Rain to Hear the Governor Talk on the Tariff.

Cincinnati, Oct. 20.—Gov. Campbell's meeting at Batavia yesterday was a revelation to the people of Clermont county.

It so far outnumbered the McKinley meeting at that place that the latter affair can not be used for the purpose of comparison.

There were six bands and fifteen organized clubs in the procession. Besides this many of the townships sent organized delegations and the little town was literally uncomfortably overcrowded.

Clermont is one of the counties that composed Gov. Campbell's old congressional district. The republican papers have been charging that the governor is not popular with the people in that county and the latter insisted on the meeting in order that they might prove the contrary.

That they did this is shown by the fact that at the meeting 8,000 more feet of lumber was used in erecting the seats than for the same purpose when McKinley was here. The seats were not all filled at McKinley's meeting. At Gov. Campbell's meeting fully 1,500 people were compelled to stand. McKinley had a fair day, and as Gov. Campbell's meeting the immense audience stood in a drizzling rainstorm for two hours and heard the governor and Judge Crisp discuss the tariff question.

The demonstration of Clermont's feeling toward "Jimmy" Campbell has demoralized the republicans of this section of the state. They have just begun to realize what a strong hold Gov. Campbell has on the people and, even though they have an unlimited supply of money at their command, they fear that they will not be able to stem the tide in the two weeks remaining.

EVERYONE SNEEZING.

Colds Remarkably Prevalent—Will the Grip Return—Dangers of Pneumonia.

Have you noticed the unusual number of colds possessed by your acquaintances this year? There seems to be no particular reason why the fall of this year should be more trying than usual, but, nevertheless it is a fact. Those who know something of these matters say that this extraordinary prevalence of colds is the forerunner of another visitation of the grip. Whether it may turn out so or not, a thing everyone should do is to get rid of a cold as soon as possible on account of the danger to which a person with a "little cold" is exposed. Pneumonia no one wishes to face, and it is no exaggeration to state that 80 per cent. of deaths from this cause could have been averted if the cold out of which they grew had been cured.

By far the best method of ridding oneself of a cold is to take a little pure stimulant in water and keep warm after having done so. The greatest care and prompt measures should be taken at the slightest sign of the approach of pneumonia. If you have a tickling in the throat, tightness of the chest, pain in the head, a chilly feeling or pains throughout the body, immediately use some pure stimulant to promote the circulation and avert the catastrophe. It should be particularly borne in mind that to be of the required value the stimulant (whiskey preferably) must be pure, and Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which can be obtained of your druggist or grocer, meets the requirements. It is standard and reliable and the fact that it has received the indorsements of the leading scientists and physicians of the present day is the best guarantee of its usefulness as a medicine. Insist upon having it and do not allow the salesman to sell you a substitute which he may recommend as "just as good." There is no other medicinal whiskey which equals Duffy's Pure Malt in purity and excellence.

A Pleasing Variety on the Bee's Library Table.

Henry Adams' Historic Essays in Neat Covers--- The "Unknown."

A Queen's Novel—Barrie's Auld Licht Idylls—The New Crisis by Bell Holiday Volumes.

"Some Emotions and a Moral," by John Oliver Hobbes, is the eighth number in the "Unknown Library," issued by the publishing house of Cassell & Co., New York. These slim little calico dressed volumes, every one, are removed from the commonplace in fiction and the series has thus become popular. The number in hand is one of the stories that you read into whether you will or not. Its first paragraph is an epigram and the succeeding pages are full of them. The plot is arranged to afford a study and delineation of character, the result of which is somewhat disappointing, in spots and places. The reader wants the heroine, Cynthia Heathcote, who is, by the way, the daughter of an English Rector, to develop more womanliness as she has heart experiences that would warrant it. Her sister Agatha is an artistic creation, rather, an artistic copy of the proper, well-bred English maiden, eldest daughter of a clergyman.

Godfrey Provence, the hero, is an eccentric literary genius who grows smaller instead of larger with the development of the story. The first disappointment is that he is married with a woman to whom the reader is not introduced until too late to win interest for her. And this, after the charming story of his first love and engagement is told so much in detail that one feels defrauded by not being told the secret of his second choice and the particulars of his courtship. Then, after you have made up your mind from what you can glean, that Grace (the wife) is a gentle, kind, proper sort of a woman sadly neglected by her erratic and pre-occupied husband, she becomes enamored of a weak sort of man who pities her, plans an elopement with him all herself, and he does a tragic deed to escape her. A pleasanter task than to note imperfections is to quote some of the bright epigrams aforesaid:

"When a man forgets his ideals he may hope for happiness, not till then."

"Sympathy is the one emotion which seems most perfect, as it becomes most animal; in its human aspect it too often lapses into the moralizing grandmother. A dog can put more soul into a look than a friend can talk in an hour."

"Lady Theodosia Gore-Jones: Your father cannot realize that I have other interests in life besides housekeeping. If I died to-morrow he would expect me to soar into heaven with the store cupboard on my back."

"It is certainly difficult to believe hard things of a woman who looks like a Saint Nitouche—in profile."

"You may know a tree by its fruit but not men and women by their actions."

"Think you, if Laura had been Petrarch's wife, he would have written sonnets to her all his life?"

"To write country idyls one should live in town."

Some bits of description: "My quarters might be worse, and are as comfortable as a respectable woman, a voracious child and a barnyard can make them. * * I must not forget the garden—rich with gooseberry bushes, mignonette, apple trees and potatoes; odorous with world-weary cabbage and patent fertilizer. A modern Eden with a dash of the commonplace, and a clothes line extended from the Tree of Knowledge to the Tree of Life."

"Amaryllis," No. 7, in the same series as the above, is a story of the falling in love of two young natives of Greece. The story purports to be told by a Grecian novelist, and perhaps is. It is not unjust to the book to say that others of the same series have been superior to it. "Amaryllis" is likely to please best very young novel readers, and it is a pure story, which may safely be put in the hands of the youngest.

All Cassell's publications are for sale by Brown, Eager & Hull.

Anent the authorship of Carmen Sylvia (Queen of Roumania) one critic has said, "if a queen chooses to so amuse herself, where's the harm?" Perhaps this was a bit cruel, but it comes to mind as one reads the opening chapters of her latest fiction, "Edleen Vaughn, or Paths of Peril," published in this country by Cassell & Co., N. Y. The saying and its partial indorsement may be better understood by some quotations.

Explanatory: Edleen Vaughn is the surpassingly beautiful wife of a wealthy mine owner, whose estate and home is somewhere among the Welsh mountains, and by the sea. She has a scapegrace son by a former marriage and two lovely little girls by the second union. She treads the "paths of peril" by giving her son money and audience in secret when her good patient husband knows better than she how it only helps him on the downhill road of vice. The wicked son is handsome, lying, impulsive, devoid of fear and reckless of consequences. His love affairs, with hatred of his stepfather and deception towards his weak and beautiful mother are the exciting portrayals in the story. But to the quotations which show the romantic and immature imagination and the untrained pen.

"She (Edleen) passed her hand across her brow, the Indian diamonds on her third finger flashing as she moved. Then she bent toward the lamp to screw the flame a little higher, and the light fell upon a pair of lovely dark-grey eyes that could vie in brilliancy and varied hue with the stone called "cat's eye" and did vie with it, too, for her gown was fastened at the throat with a single stone of that kind, set in tiny diamonds. Her neck looked very fair and youthful as it bent gracefully forward from among the white lace folds of her collar."

"The keen, pale flare of a lamp, whose green shade kept all the rest of the room in darkness."

How a flare could be pale and keen at the same time is not explained.

Edleen is described thus, under the flare of the lamp, as she sits poring over an account book endeavoring to "stuff" the debit column to cover up the amount stealthily given her wicked son.

"The rushing and thundering waves proclaimed the vicinity of the sea and from time to time a gust of wind shook the lofty bow windows, the shutters, the tiles on the roof, the moaning trees and shivering creepers." The prodigal son comes in through a window and demands more money, and at the slight resistance offered by his mother catches his step-sister's doll from the hearth-rug and throws it onto the grate, which starts "a regular bonfire that seems bent on outroaring the storm and the surf."

One would wonder if the doll were filled with gunpowder instead of sawdust.

"A clock struck midnight in deep, seemingly far-off tones."

"A palm fell to the ground and tossed its long feathery leaves against the pane."

There are bits of verse, poetic and otherwise, scattered through the book, and altogether it is the kind of a romance that would win a prize in a "Family Story Paper." If it were the first aspiring effort of a young person who had been examined intellectually, we should say, there's promise in it. Handsomely published in the Cassell's Belle Lettre series. Price $1. For sale by Brown, Eager and Hull.

From the same house comes another of those charming Scotch books, written by J. M. Barrie. Those who enjoyed (and who that read did not) "A Window in Thrums" and "My Lady Nicotine" will take "Auld Licht Idylls" in hand with keen anticipation, nor will he be disappointed. These idylls are woven of the aspects and incidents in the every-day life in and about Thrums—in the glen of Quhairy, and are told by the Auld Licht dominie who is, also, the schoolmaster of the countryside. The quaint descriptions with their bits of Scotch wording, are perfect in their way. For instance, this, of a "snow-bound" winter's morning:

"Another white blanket has been spread upon the glen since I looked out last night; for over the same wilderness of snow that has met my gaze for a week I see the steading of Waster Lunny sunk deeper into the waste. The schoolhouse I suppose serves similarly, as a snow-mark for the people at the farm. Unless that is Waster Lunny's grieve foddering the cattle in the snow, not a living thing is visible. The ghostlike hills that pen in the glen have ceased to echo to the sharp crack of the sportsman's gun (so clear in the frosty air as to be a warning to every rabbit and partridge in the valley); and only giant callow shows here and there a black ridge, rearing his head at the entrance to the glen and struggling ineffectually to cast off his shroud.

* * *

In the warm kitchen, where I dawdle over my breakfast, the widowed bantam hen has perched on the back of my drowsy cat. It is needless to go through the form of opening the school to-day, for with the exception of Waster Lunny's girl I have had no scholars for nine days. * * My breath freezes, despite my pipe as I peer from the door; and with a fortnight old newspaper I retire to the ingle nook. The friendliest thing I have seen to-day is the well-smoked ham suspended from my kitchen rafters. It was a gift from the farm of Tullin with a load of peats, the day before the snow began to fall. I doubt if I have seen a cart since."

There is a charm in every page. The close observation of nature is Thoreau's own; the description of Auld Licht characters as perfect as Burns' Tam O'Shanter and Souter Johnny and the winter pictures, in Scotland, as bleak and shivery as Whittier's own for New England. One has to close the book and put it resolutely away, to resist the temptation to describe "Thrums" from the hill-top view, the courtship of the simple lassies with their knitting and the stiff piety of the "Auld Lichts." For sale in Toledo by Brown, Eager and Hull, $1.50.

One of the books on the political issues of to-day, which can be heartily commended for careful perusal, is "The New Crisis," by Geo. W. Bell. Toledoans have become pleasantly acquainted with the author and his accomplished wife, Evelyn Bell, through the medium of the newspapers and in Mr. Bell's case some of the best political platform talks that have been heard in the city for many a day. The themes of some of the chapters will show the scope of the work; "Government by Consent," "Liberty," "Methods of Acquiring Wealth," "The Great Conspiracy," "Monopoly of Land," "Labor and Its Master," "The Demands of the Hour." It is an excellent work to put into the hands of young citizens just forming opinions. Mr. Bell has a gift of terse and forceful expression with his pen as well as in oral effort. Published by Brown, Eager and Hull, first edition in 1887.

The nine volumes contributed by Henry Adams to the history of the United States, covering the administrations of Jefferson and Madison, 1801-1817, have given him a foremost place among the historical writers of the country. For this reason his volume of "Historical Essays," published by Charles Scribner's Sons, will be welcomed. These essays will also add to the reputation he has made. There are nine of them, and upon a variety of subjects, as their titles indicate: Primitive Rights of Women; Captaine John Smith; Harvard College, 1786-1787; Napoleon I. at St. Domingo; The Bank of England Restriction; The Declaration of Paris, 1861; The Legal-Tender Act; The New York Gold Conspiracy; The Session, 1869-70. No student of the vital questions of to-day can afford not to read the last three of these, and if he has read them as they appeared in review and magazine he knows he wants them in book form for handy reference. The story of the Erie Conspirators and "Black Friday" reads like a chapter in Zola's "Money." The ground taken in the essay on the legal-tender act, that it was not necessary in 1862, is original and well defended. The conclusion of the last essay is that in the first years of Grant's administration we entered upon that period of subordination of constitution and of states righs to the domination of plutocrats and combinations which in the end may overthrow the republic. There are those who do not believe this concentration of power at Washington exists. There are those who believe it began earlier than 1869. There are those who ought to have an opinion upon the subject, and have never thought of forming one. The present work will give them all something new to think about. Cloth bound, $2. For sale by Brown, Eager & Hull.

For the Holidays.

Books and calendars with holiday look and flavor are already on the Bee table. The boys and girls of America are favored beyond comparison in a literary way, for the best of authors dedicate their talents to the instruction and amusement of youth. "We All," by Octave Thanet, is a wholesome, hearty one boys' and girls' story, with fine illustrations by E. J. Austen and J. P. Birren, published by D. Appleton & Co., New York. It is prettily dedicated to "Three little children I love, Henry, Decker and Grace." The story is bright and full of incident, is attractive in form and can be heartily commended.

From the same house comes "Midshipman Paulding," in "Young Heroes of Our Navy" series, by Molly Elliot Seawell, whose "Little Jarvis" and Maid Marian" have established her a favorite author with young people. A story of the sea has always a dash that is fascinating to boys and girls, and this one is stirring and well told, and contains, incidentally excellent lessons. The volume is attractive in appearance with blue and gold "naval" cover, properly pictured and inscribed. Price $1; for sale by Brown, Eager & Hull.

G. A. Henty is an English writer of reputation, who devotes much of his time and effort to literary labor for the youth, especially the boy readers. His "Held Fast for England, a tale of the Seige of Gibraltar," finely illustrated by Gordon Browne and published by the Scribners, New York,) is history woven into the form of fiction in a skilful and interesting manner. The hero of the story is an English lad who resides in Gibraltar and his bravery and courage during the long seige, bring in many scenes and pictures that were real and will fix themselves in the mind as a simple statement of fact would never do.

"The Dash for Kartoum" and "Redskin and Cowboy" are two other new books by the same author. These are all regularly manufactured and published in this country by Charles Scribner's Sons under protection of copyright. Thirty-two stories for boys by Mr. Henty, besides the new ones published in this country are advertised in Scribners' leaflets. Of the last-mentioned work, the author assures his readers that the cowboy's life is faithfully depicted, as the stories of adventures are the real experiences of a near relative, himself a cowboy for years in New Mexico. The three books are uniform in price; $1.50, and can be had of Brown, Eager & Hull in Toledo.

With their books for boys the Scribners also send out "The Pilots of Pomona, A Story of the Orkney Islands," by Robert Leighton. It opens with the preparation for sea, at the port of Stromness, of the great whaling fleet that sails every year to the Greenland fisheries. The book has the true salt water flavor, and items of information concerning islands and main land are scattered through the story, which is bright, full of adventure, and made still more attractive by handsome covers and eight full page illustrations. Sold in Toledo by Brown, Eager & Hull.

Nor are the girls forgotten. Porter & Coates, Philadelphia, have just published for them "The Squire's Daughter," by Lucy C. Lillie, a lively story whose characters are real-life folk of whom "Dolly," the heroine, is only one of many to enlist the sympathies of the reader. It is recommended as suitable for girls between the ages of twelve and fifteen years. Handsomely printed and illustrated, presented in lovely illuminated covers and listed as the now volume in the "Millbrook Library."

Notes and Comments.

The Buckeye state is filling a large place in public notice just now, and Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly, always up with the times, catches the spirit and presents in its current number a scholarly and entertaining paper on "Ohio: Its History and Resources," by Senator Sherman, illustrated by thirty-five portraits of distinguished sons of Ohio, living and dead, and presenting, besides these, a number of interesting views. In this same number, Clara Morris, America's foremost emotional actress, writes interestingly about "The Modern Emotional Drama and Its Exponents," and Andrew J. Symington, the eminent British writer, gives a picturesque account of "Iceland and Its Thousand Years." Other illustrated articles are: "Old Fort Laramie," by Major W. H. Powell; "Under the Palms," by F. Fitz-Roy Dixon; "Five British Authors," by Neil Macdonald; "The London Literary Hive," by Florence Fenwick Miller; "The Cottage and Grave of John Brown," by Frederic G. Mather; and "Arachne and Her Cunning Ways," by Col. Nicholas Pike. Also "A Terrible Case," and half a dozen short tales.

T. B. Peterson & Brothers publish in their 25-cent paper series "Carmen, the Gypsy Girl." Most readers do not need to be told that this is one of the greatest works of the great French writer, Prosper Merimee, and the one upon which the popular opera of "Carmen" is founded.

THE THEATER.

Farce Comedies the Attractions at Both Houses.

Two Old Cronies Catch on at the People's—Natural Gas, the Duff Opera Company and Julia Marlowe.

Comstock's company of comedians in "A High Roller" played to a fair sized but disappointed audience at Wheeler opera house last evening. "A High Roller" is a light farce comedy for the purpose of holding together a galaxy of specialties. It was alleged to be spectacular and to have a plot, but these features failed to make themselves manifest.

Some very pleasing and novel electrical effects are introduced, however, and the staging and costuming of the piece is very fine.

The star of the company is John D. Gilbert, formerly with Natural Gas, and his ability for first-class fun making kept the audience roaring most of the time he was on. His very presence is amusing, and he introduces some good topical songs and clever dances. Barney Fagan and J. J. Coleman carried their parts well, and with Gilbert made a very funny trio. Leon, as Ethelinda Roller, gave a good impersonation of a wealthy old maid, and during the piece introduced some novelties. The ladies of the troupe were led by Lottie Mortimer, who, as the saucy soubrette, made a hit and proved herself a clever dancer. "A High Roller" will be produced again to-night.

Two Old Cronies.

"Two Old Cronies" drew an audience at the People's last night, which was good considering the very bad condition of the weather. Those who did go had no reason to complain of the entertainment they braved the elements to see. "Two Old Cronies" is a very good card. There is nothing in the piece other than an excellent opportunity for specialties, of which the cast takes proper advantage. The two Wills are "funny mugs," as the gallery gods criticise them, and kept the audience smiling all evening.

Monte Collins held up his end of the plank, and Louis Finninger, as Henrie De Montlaville, is very clever in his line. Blanche Chapman as Bisstles was quite a favorite, and her character impersonations were excellent, that of an old colored Auntie being received with cheers.

The specialties consisted mostly of singing and dancing. The songs are new, dancing not bad, the business up to the times, and all in all the attraction is deserving of patronage. "Two Old Cronies" holds forth at the People's all week.

Natural Gas.

These popular comedians, famous throughout the length and breadth of the American union as Whirlem O'Rourke and Christopher Bluff, come here shortly presenting the cleverest and jolliest of all the farce comedy successes, Natural Gas. Donnelly and Girard are at the front rank among the most popular and gifted of the younger generation of American comedians. Natural Gas has always drawn packed houses every place, and is as full of fun as it is possible for a performance to be. It has played everywhere this season to crowded houses in all parts of the country, and it may be confidently expected to draw the same large and enthusiastic audiences for the coming engagement at Wheeler opera house, Thursday, October 22.

Duff Opera Company.

The popular Duff Opera company, which holds the boards at Wheeler's Friday and Saturday of this week includes such talented artists as Richard Carroll, W. H. Clark, Joseph C. Fay, J. J. Raffael, Wm. Schuster, Olo Loeckeen, H. Stanley, Miss Alice Cameron, Miss Gussie Coogan, Miss Betina Gerard, Miss Minnie De Rue and Miss Helen Bertram, and they carry with them a splendid chorus of 60 voices. The orchestra is under the direction of the well known composer and director, Schelli Simonson.

Miss Gussie Coogan's dancing in the operas produced by the Duff Opera company has made a great hit. She is not only exceedingly graceful and picturesque in every movement, but she is a beauty besides and dresses exquisitely.

Julia Marlowe.

It is said by those who have the acquaintance of Miss Julia Marlowe that she is the same natural and unassuming girl off the stage that she is on. She has often been referred to as the "chosen child of nature, sent to interpret nature, not by the school of art but by nature's own method." The basis for her phenomenal success, it is claimed, is founded upon her simple naturalness of manner, together with a very fine mind. All that she does is both dainty and delicate, exhibiting a gentleness of manner that seldom fails to captivate all who have seen her. Her engagement at Wheeler's Monday and Tuesday of next week will be an event of the season.

LINCOLN A SPIRITUALIST.

Col. Bundy Has Something to Say on the Subject.

It Comes at a Very Late Day But Nevertheless Proves to be Most Interesting.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—In reference to the statement by Nettie Colburn, of White Plains, N. Y., to the effect that President Lincoln was a spiritualist, Col. Bundy, of this city, editor of the Religio-Philosophical Journal, said to-day: "There can be no question that Mr. Lincoln sat in seances and repeatedly had mediums at the white house. I know positively that through his investigations he became convinced of the continuity of life and of communication between the two worlds. He was an unusually cautious, discreet man and while it is quite probable that he received advice from the spirit world it is also certain that he never blindly followed it.

"It would have to conform to his better judgment before being adopted. The fact is, as has been stated, that Lincoln held seances during the winter of 1864-5 with Charles Colechester and Charles Foster, the well-known mediums, and I also am able to say confidently that he held a seance with Nellie Colburn.

"Mrs. Lincoln became a confirmed spiritualist, and it is within my knowledge that after the death of her husband she spent several weeks at different times in St. Charles, Ill., in order to be near Mrs. Leonard Howard, a noted medium.

"It is my firm conviction and that of others that but for her faith in spiritualism and the messages from the spirit world which she received through the mediumship of Mrs. Howard and others, Mrs. Lincoln would have become hopelessly insane and probably a raving maniac."

But if you did not happen to be acquainted with the gentleman, do not be cast down. You perhaps know many things of a more practical nature which more than compensates. For instance, you know that you can have more happiness in a minute in a house of your own than in a week in a house you are paying rent for. You know that it is as much more economical as it is more comfortable, and that is saying a good deal. You know that in Toledo you can get a lot and build yourself a house in any part of the city and have the privilege of as much time as you wish in which to pay for it. You know that the new addition

TALMAGE IN EGYPT.

The First of His Series of Sermons.

His Text from Isaiah—Religious Significance of the Century—Old Monuments.

Brooklyn, Oct. 20.—Dr. Talmage on Sunday preached the first of a series of sermons on his Egyptian trip. His text was Isaiah x. 19-20: "In that day shall there be an altar to the Lord in the midst of the land of Egypt and a pillar at the border thereof to the Lord. And it shall be for a sign and for a witness."

Isaiah no doubt here refers to the great pyramid of Gizeh, the chief pyramid of Egypt. The text speaks of a pillar in Egypt, and this is the greatest pillar ever lifted; and the text says it is to be at the border of the land, and this pyramid is at the border of the land; and the text says it shall be for a witness, and the object of this sermon is to tell what this pyramid witnesses. This sermon is the first of a course of sermons entitled, "From the Pyramids to the Acropolis, or what I saw in Egypt and Greece confirmatory of the Scriptures."

We had on a morning of December, 1889, landed in Africa. Amid the howling boatmen at Alexandria we had come ashore and taken the rail-train for Cairo, Egypt, along the banks of the most thoroughly harnessed river of all the world—the river Nile. We had, at even-tide, entered the city of Cairo, the city where Christ dwelt while staying in Egypt during the Herodic persecution. It was our first night in Egypt. No destroying angel sweeping through as once, but all the stars were out, and the skies were filled with angels of beauty and angels of light, and the air was balmy as an American June. The next morning we were early awake and at the window, looking upon palm trees in full glory of leafage, and upon gardens of fruits and flowers at the very season when our homes far away are canopied by black skies and the last leaf of the forest has gone down in the equinoctials.

But how can I describe the thrill of expectation for to-day we are to see what all the world has seen or wants to see—the Pyramids. We are mounted for an hour and a half's ride. We pass on amid bazars stuffed with rugs and carpets, and curious fabrics of all sorts from Smyrna, from Algiers, from Persia, from Turkey, and through steets where we meet people of all colors and all garbs, carts loaded with garden productions, priests in gowns, women in black veils, Bedouins in long and seemingly superfluous apparel, Janissaries in jacket of embroidered gold—out and on toward the great Pyramid; for, though there are 69 pyramids still standing, the pyramid at Gizeh is the monarch of pyramids. We meet camels grunting under their load, and see buffaloes on either side, browsing in pasture fields. The road we travel is for part of the way under clumps of acacia, and by long rows of sycamore and tamerisk, but after awhile it is a path of rock and sand, and we find we have reached the margin of the desert, the great Sahara Desert, and we cry out to the dragoman as we see a huge pile of rock looming in sight: "Dragoman, what is that?" His answer is "The Pyramid," and then it seemed as if we were living a century every minute. Our thoughts and emotions were too rapid and intense for utterance, and we ride on in silence until we come to the foot of the pyramid spoken of in the text, the oldest structure in all the earth, four thousand years old at least. Here it is. We stand under the shadow of a structure that shuts out all the sky and we look up and strain our vision to appreciate the distant top, and are overwhelmed while we cry "The Pyramid! The Pyramid!"

I had started that morning with the determination of ascending the Pyramid. One of my chief objects in going to Egypt was not only to see the base of that granite wonder but to stand on the top of it. Yet the nearer I came to this eternity in stone the more my determination was shaken. Its altitude to me was simply appaling. A great height has always been to me a most disagreeable sensation. As we dismounted at the base of the Pyramid I said, "Others may go up it, but not I. I will satisfy myself with a view from the base. The ascent of it would be to me a foolhardy undertaking." But after I had given up all idea of ascending, I found my daughter was determined to go, and I could not let her go with strangers, and I changed my mind, and we started with guides. It cannot be done without these helpers. Two or three times foolhardy men have attempted it alone, but their bodies came tumbling down unrecognizable and lifeless. Each person in our party had two or three guides or helpers. One of them unrolled his turban and tied it around my waist, and he held the other end of the turban as a matter of safety. Many of the blocks of stone are four or five feet high and beyond an ordinary human stride unless assisted. But two Arabs to pull and two Arabs to push, I found myself rapidly ascending from height to height, and on, to altitudes terrific, and at last at the tip top, we found ourselves on a level space of about thirty feet square. Through the clearest atmosphere we looked off upon the desert, and off upon the winding Nile, and off upon the Sphinx with its features of everlasting stone, and yonder upon the minarets of Cairo glittering in the sun, and yonder upon Memphis in ruins, and off upon the wreck of empires and the battle-fields of ages, a radius of view enough to fill the mind and shock the nerves and overwhelm one's entire being.

After looking around for a while, and a kodack had pictured the group, we descended. The descent was more trying than the ascent, for climbing you need not see the depths beneath, but coming down it was impossible not to see the abysms below. But two Arabs ahead to help us down, and two Arabs to hold us back, we were lowered, hand below hand, until the ground was invitingly near and amid the jargon of the Arabs we were safely landed. Then came one of the most wonderful feats of daring and agility. One of the Arabs solicited a dollar, saying he would run up and down the pyramids in seven minutes. We would rather have given him a dollar not to go, but this ascent and descent in seven minutes he was determined on, and so by the watch in seven minutes he went to the top and was back again at the base. It was a blood-curdling spectacle.

I said the dominant color of the pyramid was gray, but in certain lights it seems to shake off the gray of centuries and become a blonde and the silver turns to the golden. It covers thirteen acres of ground. What an antiquity! It was at least two thousand years old when the baby Christ was carried within sight of it by his fugitive parents, Joseph and Mary. The storms of forty centuries have drenched it, bombarded it, shadowed it, flashed upon it, but there it stands ready to take another forty centuries of atmospheric attack if the world should continue to exist. The lodest buildings of the earth are juniors to this great senior of the centuries. Herodotus says that for ten years preparations were being made for the building of this pyramid. It has 82,111.00 cubic feet of masonry. One hundred thousand workmen at one time toiled in its erection. To bring the stone from the quarries a causeway sixty feet wide was built. The top stones were lifted by machinery such as the world knows nothing of to-day. It is 746 feet each side of the square base. The structure is 450 feet high, higher than the cathedrals of Cologne, Strasburg, Rouen, St. Peter's and St. Paul's. No surprise to me that it was put at the head of the seven wonders of the world. It has a subterraneous room of red granite called the "King's chamber," and another room called the "Queen's chamber," and the probability is that there are other rooms yet unexplored. The evident design of the architect was to make these rooms as inaccessible as possible. After all the work of exploration and all the digging and blasting, if you would enter these subterraneous rooms you must go through a passage only three feet eleven inches high and less than four feet wide. A sarcophagus of red granite stands down under this mountain of masonry. The sarcophagus could not have been carried in after the pyramid was built. It must have been put there before the structure was reared. Probably in that sarcophagus once lay a wooden coffin containing a dead king, but time has destroyed the coffin and destroyed the last vestige of human remains. For three thousand years this sepulchral room was unopened, and would have been until to-day, probably unopened, had not a superstitious impression got abroad that the heart of the pyramid was filled with silver and gold and diamonds, and under Al Mamoun an excavating party went to work and having bored and blasted through a hundred feet of rock they found no opening ahead and were about to give up the attempt when the workmen heard a stone roll down into a seemingly hollow place and encouraged by that they resumed their work and came into the underground rooms. The disappointment of the workmen in finding the sarcophagus empty of all silver and gold and precious stones was so great that they would have assassinated Al Mamoun, who employed them, had he not hid in another part of the pyramid as much silver and gold as would pay them for their work at ordinary rate of wages and induced them there to dig till they to their surprise came upon adequate compensation.

I wonder not that this mountain of lime stone and red granite has been the fascination of scholars, of scientists, of intelligent Christians in all ages. Sir John Herschel, the astronomer, said he thought it had astronomical significance. The wise men who accompanied Napoleon's army into Egypt went into profound study of the pyramid. In 1865, Professor Smyth and his wife lived in the empty tombs near by the pyramid that they might be as continuously as possible close to the pyramid which they were investigating. The pyramid built more than four thousand years ago, being a complete geometrical figure, wise men have concluded it must have been divinely constructed. Men came through thousands of years to fine archecture, to music, to painting, but this was perfect at the world's start, and God must have directed it. All astronomers and geometricians and scientists say that it was scientifically and mathematically constructed before science and mathematics were born. From the inscription on the pyramid, from its proportions, from the points of the compass recognized in its structure, from the direction in which its tunnels run, from the relative position of the blocks that compose it, scientists, Christians and infidels, have demonstrated that the being who planned this pyramid must have known the world's sphericity, and that its motion was rotary, and how many miles it was in diameter and circumference, and how many tons the world weighs, and knew at what point in the heavens certain stars would appear at certain periods of time. Not in the four thousand years since the putting up of that pyramid has a single fact in astronomy or mathematics been found to contradict the wisdom of that structure. Yet they had not at that age when the pyramid was started an astronomer or an architect or a mathematician worth mentioning. Who, then, planned the pyramid? Who superintended its erection? Who from its first foundation stone to its capstone erected everything? It must have been God. Isaiah was right when he said in my text "A pillar shall be at the border of the land of Egypt and it shall be for a sign and a witness." The pyramid is God's first Bible. Hundreds if not thousands of years before the first line of the book of Genesis was written, the lessons of the pyramid was written.

Well, of what is this Cyclopean masonry a sign and witness? Among other things of the prolongation of human work compared with the brevity of human life. In all the four thousand years this pyramid has only lost eighteen feet in width, one side of its square at the base changed only from seven hundred and sixty-four feet to seven hundred and forty-six feet, and the most of that eighteen feet taken off by architects to furnish stone for buildings in the city of Cairo. The men who constructed the pyramid worked at it only a few years and then put down the trowel and the compass and the square and lowered the derrick which had lifted the ponderous weights; but forty centuries has their work stood, and it will be good for forty centuries more. All Egypt has been shaken by terrible eathquakes and cities have been prostrated or swallowed, but that pyramid has defied all volcanic paroxysms. It has looked upon some of the greatest battles ever fought since the world stood. Where are the men who constructed it? Their bodies gone to dust and even the dust scattered. Even the sarcophagus in which the king's mummy may have slept is empty.

So men die but their work lives on. We are all building pyramids not to last four thousand years, but forty thousand, forty million, forty trillion, forty quadrillion, forty quintillion. For a while we wield the trowel or pound with the hammer or measure with the yard stick or write with the pen or experiment with the scientific battery or plan with the brain, and for a while the feet walks and the eye sees and the ear hears and the tongue speaks. All the good words or bad words we speak are spread out into one layer for a pyramid. All the kind deeds or malevolent deeds we do are spread out into another layer. All the Christian or unchristian example we set is spread out in another layer. All the indirect influences of our lives are spread out in another layer. Then the time soon comes when we put down the implement of toil and pass away, but the pyramid stands. The twentieth century will not rock it down, nor the thirtieth century, nor the one hundredth century. The earthquake that rocks this world to pieces will not stop our influence for good or evil. You modestly say: "That is true in regard to the great workers for good or evil, and of gigantic geniuses, Miltonian or Tallerrandian, but not of me, for I live and work on a small scale." My hearer, remember that those who built the pyramids were common workmen. Not one of them could lift one of those great stones. It took a dozen of them to lift one stone and others just wielded the trowel, clicking it on the hard edge, or smoothing the mortar between the layer. One hundred thousand men toiled on those sublime elevations. If one of those granitic blocks that I just touch with my feet on this December morning in 1889 as the two Arabs pull me and the two other Arabs push me, could speak out and tell its history it would say: "The place of my nativity was down in the great stone quarry of Mokattam or Asswan. Then they began to bore at my sides, and then to drive down great iron wedges, crushing against me till the whole quarry quaked and thundered. Then I was pried out with crowbars and levers, scores of men putting their weight on the leverage. Then chains were put around me and I was hoisted with wheels that groaned under the weight, and many workmen had their hands on the cranks, and turned until the muscles in their arms stood out in ridges, and the sweat rolled from their dusky foreheads. Then I was drawn by long teams of oxen, yoke after yoke, yoke after yoke. Then I was put on an inclined plane and hauled upward, and how many iron tools and how many human arms, and how many beasts of burden were employed to get me to this place no one can tell. Then I had to be measured, and squared, and compassed, and fitted in before I was left here to do my silent work of thousands of years. Only God knows how many hands were busied in getting me from my geological cradle in the quarry to this enthronement of innumerable ages." My hearers, that is the autobiography of one block of that pyramid. Cheops didn't build the pyramid. Some boss mason in the world's twilight didn't build the pyramid. One hundred thousand men built it, and perhaps from first to last 200,000 men. So with the pyramids now rising, pyramids of evil or pyramids of good. The pyramid of drunkenness rising ever since the time when Noah got drunk on wine, although there was at his time such a superabundance of water. All the saloonists of the ages adding their layers of ale casks and wine pitchers and rum jugs until the pyramid overshadows the Great Sahara Desert of desolated homes, and broken hearts, and destroyed eternities. And as the pyramid still rises, layers of human skulls piled on top of human skulls and other mountains of human bones to whiten the peaks reaching into the heavens, hundreds of thousands of people are building that pyramid. So with the pyramid of righteousness. Multitudes of hands are toiling on the steeps, hands infantile, hands octogenarian, masculine hands, female hands, strong hands, weak hands. Some clanging a trowel, some pulling a rope, some measuring the sides. Layers of psalms books on top of layers of sermons. Layers of prayers on top of layers of holy sacrifice. And hundreds of thousands coming down to sleep their last sleep, but other hundreds of thousands going up to take their places, and the pyramids will continue to rose until the millennial morning gilds the completed work, and the toilers on these heights shall take off their aprons and throw down their trowels, crying, "It is finished."

Your business and mine is not to build a pyramid, but to be one of the hundreds of thousands who shall ring a trowel, or pull a rope, or turn the crank of a derrick, or cry "Yo heave!" while lifting another block to its elevation. Though it be seemingly a small work and a brief work, it is a work that shall last forever. In the last day many a man and woman whose work has never been recognized on earth will come to a special honor. The Ecumenical Council, now in session at Washington, its delegates the honored representatives of fifty million Methodists in all parts of the earth, will at every session do honor to the memory of John Wesley, but I wonder if any of them will think to twist a garland for the memory of humble Peter Rohler, the Moravian, who brought John Wesley into the kingdom of God. I rejoice that all the thousands who have been toiling on the pyramid of righteousness will at last be recognized and rewarded—the mother who brought her children to Christ, the Sabbath teacher who brought her class to the knowledge of the truth, the unpretending man who saved a soul. Then the trowel will be more honored than the scepter.

As a great battle was going on the soldiers were ordered to the front and a sick man jumped out of an ambulance in which he is being carried to the hospital. The surgeon asked him what he meant by getting out of the ambulance when he was sick and almost ready to die. The soldier answered: "Doctor, I am going to the front. I had rather die on the battlefield than die in an ambulance." Thank God, if we cannot do much we can do little.

Further, carrying out the idea of my text, the Pyramid is a sign and a witness that big tombstones are not the best way of keeping one's self affectionately remembered. This Pyramid and the sixty-nine other pyramids still standing were built for sepulchres, all this great pile of granite and limbstone by which we stand to-day, to cover the memory of a dead king.

It was the great Westminster Abbey of the ancients. Some say that Cheops was the king who built this pyramid, but it is uncertain. Who was Cheops, anyhow? All that the world knows about him could be told in a few sentences. The only thing certain is that he was bad, and that he shut up the temples of worship and that he was hated so that the Egyptians were glad when he was dead. This pyramid of rock 740 feet each side of the square base and 450 feet high wins for him no respect. If a bone of his arm or foot had been found in the sarcophagus beneath the pyramid, it would have excited no more veneration than the skeleton of a camel bleaching on the Libyan desert; yea, less veneration, for when I saw the carcass of a camel by the roadside on the way to Memphis, I said to myself: "Poor thing, I wonder of what it died."

We can nothing against the marble or the bronze of the necropolis. Let all that sculpture and florescence and efflorescence can do for the places of the dead be done, if means will allow it. But if after one is dead there is nothing left to remind the world of him but some pieces of stone, there is but little left. Some of the finest monuments are over people who amounted to nothing while they lived, while some of the worthiest men and women have not as much as a stone big enough to tell their name.

Joshua, the greatest warrior the world ever saw, no monument; Moses, the greatest lawyer that ever lived, no monument; Paul, the greatest preacher that ever lived, no monument; Christ, the Savior of the world and the rapture of heaven, no monument. A pyramid over scoundrelly Cheops, but only a shingle with a lead pencil epitaph over many a good man's grave. Some of the finest obituaries have been printed about the worst rascals. To-day at Brussels there is a pyramid of flowers on the grave of Boulanger, the notorious libertine. Yet it is natural to want to be remembered.

While there seems to be no practical use for post mortem consideration later than the time of one's great-grand-children, yet no one wants to be forgotten as soon as the obsequies are over. This pyramid, which Isaiah says is a sign and a witness, demonstrates that neither limestone nor red granite are competent to keep one affectionately remembered; neither can bronze; neither can Parian marble; neither can Aberdeen granite do the work. But there is something out of which to build an everlasting monument, and that will keep one freshly remembered four thousand years; yea, for ever and ever. It does not stand in marble yards. It is not to be purchased at mourning stores. Yet it is to be found in every neighborhood, plenty of it, inexhaustible quantities of it. It is the greatest stuff in the universe to build monuments out of. I refer to the memories of those to whom we can do a kindness, the memories of those whose struggles we may alleviate, the memories of those whose souls we may save. All around Cairo and Memphis there are remains of pyramids that have gone down under the wearing away of time, and this great pyramid of which Isaiah in the text speaks will vanish if the world lasts long enough; and if the world does not last then with the earth's dissolution the pyramid will also dissolve. But the memories of those with whom we associate are indestructible. They will be more vivid the other side of the grave than this side. It is possible for me to do you a good that will be vivid in memory as many years after the world is burned up as all the sands of the seashore and all the leaves of the forest and all the grass blades of the field and all the stars of heaven added together, and that aggregate multiplied by all the figures that all the bookkeepers of all time ever wrote.

That desire to be remembered after we are gone is a divinely implanted desire and not to be crushed out, but, I implore you, seek something better than the immortalization of rock, or bronze, or book. Put yourself into the eternity of those whom you help for both worlds, this and the next. Comfort a hundred souls and there will be through all the cycles of eternity at least a hundred souls that will be your monuments. A prominent member of this church was brought to God by some one saying to her at the church door at the close of service, "Come again!" Will it be possible for that one so invited to forget the inviter? A minister passing along the street every day looked up and smiled to a baby in the window. The father and mother wondered who it was that thus pleasantly greeted their child. They found out that it was the pastor of a church. They said, "We must go and hear him preach." They went and heard him and both were converted to God. Will there be any power in fifty million years to erase from the souls of those parents the memory of that man who by his friendliness brought them to God? Matthew Cranswick, an evangelist, said that he had the names of two hundred souls saved through his singing the hymn: "Arise, my soul arise!" Will any of those two hundred souls in all eternity forget Matthew Cranswick? Will any of the four hundred and seventy-nine women and children imprisoned at Lucknow, India, waiting for massacre by the Sepoys, forget Havelock and Outram, and Sir David Beard, who broke in and effected their rescue? To some of you who have loved and served the Lord, heaven will be a great picture gallery of remembrance. Hosts of the glorified will never forget you. Ah, that is the way of building monuments that shall never feel the touch of decay. I do not ask you to suppress this natural desire of being remembered after you are gone, but I only want you to put your memorials into a shape that shall never weaken or fade. During the course of my ministry I have been intimately associated in Christian work with hundreds of good men and women. My memory is hung with their portraits more accurate and vivid than anything that Rembrant ever put on canvas: Father Grice, DeWitt C. Moore, Father Voorhees, E. P. Hopkins, Wilmam Stephens, John Van Rensselaer, Gasheric De Witt, Dr. Ward, and hundreds of others, all of them gone out of this life, but I hold the memory of them and will hold them forever. They cannot escape from me. I will remember them just as they looked on earth, and I will remember many of you after the earth has been an extinct planet for ages infinite. Oh, what stuff the memory is for monument building!

As in Egypt that December afternoon, 1889, exhausted in body, mind, and soul, we mounted to return to Cairo, we took our last look of the pyramid at Gizeh. And you know there is something in the air toward evening that seems productive of solemn and tender emotion, and that great pyramid seemed to be humanized and with lips of stone it seemed to speak and cry out: "Hear me, man, mortal and immortal! My voice is the voice of God. He designed me. Isaiah said I would be a sign and a witness. I saw Moses when he was a lad. I witnessed the long procession of the Israelites as they started to cross the Red Sea and Pharaoh's host in pursuit of them. The falcons and the eagles of many centuries have brushed my brow. I stood here when Cleopatra's barge landed with her sorceries, and Hypatia for her virtues was slain in yonder streets. Alexander the Great, Sesostris, and Ptolemy admired my proportions. Herodotus and Pliny sounded my praise. I am old, I am very old. For thousands of years I have watched the coming and going of generations. They tarry only a little while, but they make everlasting impression. I bear on my side the mark of the trowel and chisel of those who more than four thousand years ago expired. Beware what you do, Oh, man! for what you do will last long after you are dead! If you would be affectionately remembered after you are gone, trust not to any earthly commemoration. I have not one word to say about any astronomer who studied the heavens from my heights or any king who was sepulchered in my bosom. I am slowly passing away. I am a dying pyramid. I shall yet lie down in the dust of the plain and the sands of the desert shall cover me, or when the earth goes I will go. But you are immortal. The feet with which you climbed my sides to-day will turn to dust, but you have a soul that will outlast me and all my brotherhood of pyramids. Live for eternity! Live for God! With the shadows of the evening now falling from my side, I pronounce upon you a benediction. Take it with you across the Mediterranean. Take it with you across the Atlantic. God only is great! Let all the earth keep silence before him. Amen! And then the lips of granite hushed, and the great Giant of Masonry wrapped himself in the silence of ages, and as I rode away in the gathering twilight, this course of sermons was projected.

"Wondrous Egypt! Land of ancient pomp and pride,
Where Beauty walks by hoary Ruin's side,
Where plenty reigns and still the seasons smile,
And rolls—rich gift of God—exhaustless Nile."

Last evening's Columbus Dispatch has the following paragraph of interest for Toledo: The sentence of Robert Downey, sent up from Lucas county in April, 1890, for three years for assault with intent to rape, was commuted by the governor on recommendation of the board to 19 months' imprisonment. A letter from Frank H. Hurd, ex-congressman, to the governor, states that Downey was convicted of rape at Toledo under circumstances which convinced him at the time of the trial that he was innocent of the charge. He is now out on parole and his friends were anxious for his pardon. In Mr. Hurd's opinion it was a case in which executive clemency ought to be exercised.

A BOSTON MYSTERY.

A Dead Man Found, With No Clue to His Murderers.

Boston, Oct. 20.—The body of an unknown man, with bruises on the head, was found night before last on the sand at Crescent beach, near this city. The watchman of the Hotel Strathmore, near by, says he saw two men and a woman quarreling near the spot at about midnight. The body is that of a man about 35 years old, slim, dark and well dressed. His hat, soaked with blood, was found near the body. The police have no clue to the mystery as yet.

KOCH'S DISCOVERY.

The tubercle bacilli was discovered by Prof. Koch, to be constantly present in all cases of consumption. Where the blood is impoverished or impure, there results that constitutional condition known as scrofula, which is characterized by the liability of certain tissues to become the seat of chronic inflammations and enlargements. Virchow says "their vulnerability is excessive." Consequently, exciting causes which would have only passing effect upon a healthy subject, would produce inflammation and disease in the scrofulous.

These troubles may start as catarrh in the nasal passages, throat or lungs, and as the membranes become weakened, the tubercle bacilli enter, and multiply, and we have, as a result, that dread disease—Consumption.

Find a perfect remedy for scrofula, in all its forms—something that purifies the blood, as well as claims to. That, if it's taken in time, will cure consumption. It has been found, in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. As a strength-restorer, blood-cleanser, and flesh-builder, nothing like it is known in medical science. For Scrofula, Bronchial, Throat and Lung affections, Weak Lungs, Severe Coughs, and kindred ailments, it's the only remedy so sure that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, your money is refunded.

FIT FOR THE GODS.

A Dish of Rice Birds as Cooked by Uncle Billy.

Some Birds Found Along the Creek and in the Marshes—The Cries of Birds and Their Significance.

Shooting reed birds is one of the sports along the Ottawa river, and the marshes of Ten Mile creek. These, like quail, are unusually plentiful this season, and sportsmen who can manage a gun at all returned home with well filled bags. About a week ago a prominent hunter shot 34 at one shot.

A platter of well cooked rice birds is fit for the gods. Down at Uncle Billy Warner's near Point Place, the weary huntsman or fisherman returning from his day's toil in the marshes on the creek, receives a meal, the very remembrance of which makes one hungry.

The rail is also very plentiful this season, and they make an excellent dish. They are found in large numbers along the creek.

The bobolink can also be seen and heard along the marshes, and although not nearly as numerous as five or six years ago, are still found in large numbers.

Bob O' Lincoln.

Chattering with an old sport over a reed bird dinner at Uncle Billy's a few evenings since, the conversation turned upon the bobolink, or reed bird. He said: "In the southern states the bobolink is known as the rice bird. They feed on the vast acreage of rice on the swamps of the bay and lake and along the creek during the early fall, but soon hie themselves south where they attack the rice fields and devour the grain. In innumerable hosts the birds visit the fields at the time of planting in spring and then fly back north into Pennsylvania, New York and New England, where they spend the summer. About the middle of August they commence to migrate south again, and swoop down upon the rice fields once more, just at the time of harvesting the crop."

One of the largest rice growers in South Carolina tells the following of the rice bird:

"My plantation records will show that in the past ten years the rice birds come punctually on the night of the 21st of August. All night long their chirp can be heard passing over our summer house. On the next three nights millions of these birds make their appearance and settle down on our rice fields. From that time until the 25th of September our every effort is to save the crop. Men, women and boys are posted with guns and ammunition, one to every four or five acres, and shoot daily an average of about one quart of powder to a gun. This firing commences at the dawn of day and is kept up until sunset. During the bird season we employ about 100 bird minders on this plantation, who shoot from three to five kegs of powder of 25 pounds each. Add to this the cost of shot and caps, and you may know at what an enormous expense our fight with the bobolink is kept up."

Between spring and late summer, when the bobolink is at the north, he displays none of these ruinous ways of his. He is all beauty and music. Sometimes he may plunder a corn field slightly, but in Pennsylvania he is not guilty of even that slight offense. He is known on the farms of the north only as a bird most showy in his dress of black, white and yellow feathers. The song of the bobolink is a peculiar, rapid, jingling, indescribable medley of sounds, started first by one bird, quickly followed by another and another, until the whole flock is engaged in a grand concert. Then, suddenly, without any apparent reason, they all at the same instant stop. The "mellow, metallic chink" the birds utter has given them a name to imitate their song—"bob-o-link." When the birds mate the male appears to lose his vocal powers, and is heard to utter only a sharp, clinking note like that of the female and the same when they are plundering the rice fields. Bobolinks only migrate at night. They winter in the West Indies, where they get so fat that the natives have given them a fourth name—butter birds.

Anent this subject the following relative to the cries of birds will be interesting:

There is a never failing cahrm in the many musical and plaintive cries of birds, wafted from one quarter and then another, around which, in our own and other countries, so many pretty and legendary tales have clustered. Indeed, long ago, poetic fancy has given an interpretation to the notes of birds, and the sweet song of the skylark, as heard at "heaven's gate," has been said to be a repetition of the word "tirra-lyra," a combination of sounds borrowed from the French tire-lire. Shakespeare in the "Winter's Tale" speaks of "the lark that tirra-lirra chants," and Browne, in his "Brittania's Pastorals" makes it teerylerry." The woodlark's note resembles the syllables "lu lu," or "ter lu," and the plaintive cry of the chaffinch, which is generally considered a forerunner of wet weather, is rhymingly imitated by the English peasantry who cry out when they see the bird, "Weet-weet! Derep-derep."

The cry of the wood pigeon, which has been interpreted as meaning "Take tuo-o coo, Taffy! take tuo-o coo, Taffy!" forms the subject of an old Suffolk legend. The magpie, runs the story, once undertook to teach the pigeon how to build a more substantial and commodious nest; but instead of being a docile pupil the pigeon kept on her old cry of "Take tuo, Taffy! take tuo!" The magpie insisted that one stick at a time was as much as could be managed to advantage, but the pigeon, heedless of the advice, kept on crying out as before. "Tuo, take tuo." Thereupon the magpie in a passion, gave up the task, exclaiming, "I say that one at a time's enough; and if you think otherwise you may set about the work yourself, for I will have no more to do with it. Since that unhappy quarel the wood pigeon, we are told, "has built her slight platform of sticks, which certainly suffers much in comparison with the strong, substantial structure of the magpie." The wood pigeon's nest, it may be remembered, is merely a layer of cross twigs, through which the eggs can be seen from below.

As might be imagined, the song of the nightingale forms the subject of many legendary tales, and according to one popular story on the continent in olden times this favorite bird had a dog to which it was very much attached, but one day he tied it to a tree while he went out for a walk. During his absence, however, the animal in his struggle to get loose and regain his liberty, pulled up the stump and escaped. The nightingale on returning, and finding the dog gone, has ever since lamented its loss thus:

Kaie va, kaie va!
Fuit fuit! sicot, sicot!

TO TAX THE FORESTS.

A Measure That Will be Popular With the Poor.

London, Oct. 20.—Professor Bryce, M. P., has made a sensation in Scotland by his advocacy of a special tax on the owners of deer forests, on the ground that the forests are a luxury of the wealthiest class and can well bear the burden.

Professor Bryce also advocated the enactment of a law prohibiting the creation of new deer forests.

LOTS FOR $175.00
Small Down Payment---$5 Per Month!
FAIR GROUNDS ADDITION
At No Time in the History of Toledo
Have there been such rare opportunities for the prudent investor to place his money in land as at present. Toledo property is away down at rock bottom figures. Don't fail to take advantage of these prices as they are sure to go up.
Fortunes Have Been Made
By judiciously investing a few dollars in real estate, and the secret of success in often buying in a growing locality at a low figure, and holding the property.
Why Don't You Buy a Home?
You may try to get around it by saying that you cannot afford it. This is nonsense as every one of us spends more money needlessly every month than the small payment required to secure a lot.
Houses Built on Monthly Payments
With a small down payment. If you are worth $5 a month you are good for a lot in Fair Ground Addition. With the New Depot, Electric Street Ry, Water and City Gas this part of the city is bound to go ahead and prices will be from 50 to 100 per cent. higher a year later.
